British Trades Congress Delegates Issue Report of Six Weeks' Tour of Inspection in Russia

PRAISE RENUNCIATION OF OPPOSITION BY MAJORITY

Tourists Believe Present Is the Best Government Former Empire Ever Had—Sets Valuable Example

LONDON, Feb. 27. — The British Trades Union Congress delegation, which recently spent six weeks on a tour of inspection in Russia, today issued an illustrated volume of two hundred and fifty pages dealing minutely with all aspects of general conditions and labor conditions in the Soviet country.

After presenting their conclusions, the delegates state they do not desire to be regarded as apologists for the principles and procedure of Russian Communism—still less as advocates of its adoption in Great Britain. They consider, however, in respect to public health, housing and the prison system, the Soviet Government is achieving most remarkable results and, if the progress continues at the present rate, a valuable example may be set for some other European countries.

Fair Political Liberties

The delegates believe that the Soviet regime is strong and stable, that its administration has the active support of a large majority of the workers and the acceptance of an equally large majority of the peasants; that its federal structure gives fair cultural and quite fair political liberties to racial and regional minorities, together with full religious toleration.

The machinery of government, the investigators believe, although so fundamentally different from that of other states, seems to work well and is in every way better than that of any other government Russia previously has had. They believe that it is doing work in which other older states are still failing, and that these results have reconciled all but a very small minority to renouncing the rights of opposition which are essential to political liberty elsewhere. This renunciation, in the delegation's opinion, causes no resistance.

FIRE LOSSES TOTAL MILLIONS REPORTED

SPECTACULAR OUTBREAK IN TACOMA'S $400,000 HOTEL

Damage Amounting to $500,000 Done to Car Foundry in Pennsylvania—Brooklyn Times Burned Out

TACOMA, Feb. 27.—Tacoma's new community hotel, the Theodore Winthrop, was menaced by fire for a short time tonight when fresh tar on the roof became ignited, presumably from a melting pot. The great clouds of smoke rolling from the top of the structure and the leaping flames made a spectacular blaze which attracted thousands, but did damage estimated at less than $1,000. The new hostelry, which is operated by the Linnard interests, was erected at a cost of $400,000.

$800,000 Damage

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Property valued at approximately $800,000 was destroyed by fire which today raged in three Eastern cities. The heaviest loss was sustained in the blaze which levelled the pattern and wheel foundry of the American Car & Foundry Company, at Bowjek, Pa., the damage exceeding $50,000. The entire business section of the small town of Halstead, Pa., was almost wiped out, six of the principal buildings being gutted and others damaged. The loss was estimated at $250,000. A convent recently erected at Ludlow, Mass., also was razed, the structure being valued at $50,000.

Fire yesterday evening partly destroyed the editorial and composing rooms of The Brooklyn Daily Times, with an estimated loss of $100,000.

Loss $100,000 at Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 27.—Damage estimated at $100,000 was caused to the Heintzman Building, one of Windsor's main business blocks, by a fire which broke out early this morning and attacked the premises of five firms quartered in the structure. With the temperature near zero, several firemen suffered from frostbites.

Convent Burned

L'AVENIR, Que., Feb. 27.—Some thirty-five young girls and the sisters of the Convent of the Assumption here were forced to make a hurried exit from their building early this morning as a consequence of a fire which destroyed the convent, a three-story stone building. There were no casualties.

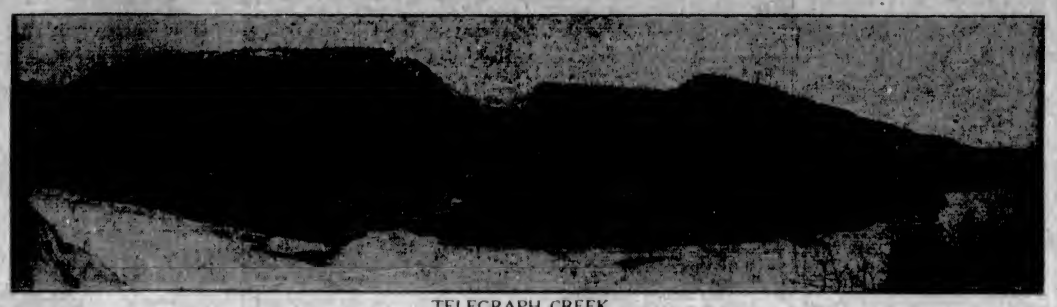

St. Paul Suffers $150,000 Fire

ST. PAUL, Feb. 27.—A spectacular fire here early today wrecked the interior of the Kendrick Building and caused a loss estimated at $150,000. Three persons reported missing were located later

Farmers' Sun's Strong Stand

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—A strong stand against the Ferguson government's stronger beer amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act is taken by The Farmers' Sun, the organ of the United Farmers of Ontario. The Sun says that 4.4 beer is intoxicating, that it will make the bootleggers more brazen and the law harder to enforce, and that Ontario will be taken back to the conditions that prevailed before the bar was abolished.

REMAND WATSON WITHOUT BAIL

Alleged Nanaimo Bank Bandit Appears Before Coal City Magistrate and Case Is Postponed

COURT MAY ACCEPT BOND IN SECOND ADJOURNMENT

Crowd in Waiting Declares Suspect Looked More Like Movie Hero Than Supposed Holdup Man

NANAIMO, Feb. 27.—Ross C. Watson, Seattle ex-policeman, appeared before Magistrate C. H. Beevor-Potts here tonight in the city police court for, his preliminary hearing in connection with the hold-up of the Royal Bank of Canada, which was looted last December 12 of $24,000.

Crowds waited outside the police court long before the trial started for a glimpse of the accused, who they declared to be more like a moving picture star than an alleged holdup man. Watson made his appearance promptly at 8:30 p.m. from some unknown place, and was flanked by the local police force and Chief Stephenson of the Provincial police.

The proceedings consisted entirely of argument between W. E. Burns, counsel for the accused, and the crown counsel for and against another remand. The argument was purely technical. Mr. Burns said his client was before the court begging for a hearing and he could not see how the crown could object to his preliminary hearing going on.

The crown, on the other hand, is anxious for the trial to be deferred in order that Watson may be tried jointly with other suspects now held in Seattle.

Magistrate Beevor-Potts, after hearing arguments, ordered a remand of eight days. Accordingly Watson will again come up Saturday, March 7. He will be returned to Oakalla on Saturday's boat.

Mr. Burns then asked for bail, which was refused, the bench stating that if at the next hearing case was remanded, bail would be considered.

SAANICH POLICE RAID ROYAL OAK

HOTEL PROPRIETOR TO FACE LIQUOR CHARGE

Chief Hastings and Staff Make First Raid Since Appointment—Large Quantity of Liquor Taken

The Saanich police, headed by Chief of Police Thomas Hastings, last night raided the Royal Oak Hotel, which is opposite the police headquarters at Royal Oak, and found on the premises a considerable quantity of liquor. Mr. Alexander French, proprietor of the premises, will be arraigned in Saanich police court and charged with keeping liquor for sale, and perhaps on additional counts.

Chief Constable Hastings was accompanied by Constables Rankin and Cawsey in the visit made last night to the Royal Oak Hotel. The raid took place at 11 o'clock. The police officers removed from the premises four sacks of beer and a considerable quantity of miscellaneous hard liquors.

Mr. French has before appeared in court to face a liquor charge, and was dismissed after his case had been heard by two former justices of the peace.

The Saanich Police Commission, at its last meeting, discussed the necessity of cleaning up certain objectionable features that exist in the municipality of Saanich at the present time, and decided that they would give the new chief and his staff instructions as to what course they wished them to adopt in connection with such matters.

The Royal Oak Hotel visit last night is the first raid that the new chief constable and his staff have made since their appointment to their posts on the police force several weeks ago.

Portland Canal Ready For Year of Activity

Stewart Newspaperman Tells of North Country's Expectation of Unprecedented Mining Development—Last Season Was One of Preparation and 1925 Will Show Results—Indian May Show Up Well—Alice Arm Prospects Good

RESIDENTS of Stewart, B. C., anticipate the greatest growth in the history of the busy mining centre of Northern British Columbia, according to W. R. Hull, who arrived from the North Thursday morning.

Mr. Hull is news editor of The Portland Canal News of Stewart and for the past six years has kept in touch with mining developments in what is destined to be, he says, the great producer of lead, silver and gold of the Dominion of Canada.

Many New Camps

"We do not expect a boom in Stewart during the coming Summer nor do we want one," he said "as booms are generally underatood. What we do expect and what we will have is a very greatly accelerated movement in the line development of mining properties which, of course, will benefit business interests of the town.

"Last year was a year of preparation; building camps on various properties, cutting trails, surveying, surface prospecting, laying out plans for permanent development. This preliminary work having been done, this year will witness the actual development work progressing.

"There are for properties that had not prepared the year before, and include such well-known prospects as the Gold Cliff, the Rufus, the Ruby Silver, the Emperor, the Silver Crest and others perhaps not now recalled.

Work Continues

"The older properties such as the Independent, L. and L., Lakeview, Terminus, that have been working all Winter, are well known to the public through reports published from time to time.

"About April 1 Stewart people expect the Porter-Idaho to resume operations. This property, under a syndicate basis shipped enough ore last Summer, under the most adverse transportation facilities, to pay all expenses and leave a substantial profit in the treasury of the syndicate.

"It is now organized on a stock basis to prosecute further development on a much larger scale. They intend driving a long crosscut tunnel to open up the whole of their vein system.

Shipments Under Way

"They will build a tram from their working down to the forks of the Marmot River, preparing for shipments of great tonnage a year hence. Meanwhile, during the present season they will continue to ship high-grade ore by pack horses, as they did last Summer.

SAYS SAANICH MAY SHOW RETALIATION

REEVE MACNICOL COMMENTS ON "IRKSOME" PARKING RULE

Claims City Police Board Has Peculiar Way of Boosting Victoria—Saanich People Complain

That the Saanich Police Commission might at its meeting next Friday decide to show some form of retaliation to the proposal of the City Police Commission for the one-hour parking limit in the central parts of the city, was the declaration of Reeve Robert Macnicol of Saanich to The Colonist, in commenting last night upon the decision of the Victoria Police Board.

Reeve Macnicol points out that the parking regulation will prove very irksome to Saanich residents and those living in other municipalities near the city who come to Victoria to do their shopping. Unless the city decided to either rescind or change its parking regulation, the Saanich Police Commission might make conditions in Saanich just as irksome to Victoria people when they have occasion to drive in Saanich.

The statement made to The Colonist last night by Reeve Macnicol follows:

"Realising the difficulty which the question of parking autos presents to the Victoria City Police Commission, I have no desire to add to their troubles, but there is no doubt but that the present regulation is extremely irksome to people who come from the suburbs to Victoria to do their shopping.

"Afraid of breaking the present by-law, they have to leave their autos a considerable distance away from where the stores they patronize are situated, and pack their purchases a long distance to their cars. In any case, at the present time everyone is endeavoring to bear a prosperous appearance, and in my mind it seems to be a rather peculiar way of boosting the city to make it have the aspect of a village from morning to night daily.

Regulation Apparently Unpopular

"I have received many complaints from Saanich residents against the present regulation now being enforced by the city police, and am being urged to make conditions in Saanich just as irksome to Victoria people when they have occasion to drive in our district.

"Two blacks do not make a white, and I would be somewhat reluctant to stiffen up too much on our regulations so far as they might affect Victoria people who visit our municipality, but if it will awaken the people of the City of Victoria to some drastic action in connection with the legislation now being enforced, then it might be worth while of the Saanich Police Commission considering some form of retaliation.

"There would be no objection to enforcing the one-hour parking regulation in streets like Fort Street, but not in the other wide streets, as at present."

Manchester's Bellevue Gardens Taken Over By London Combine

MANCHESTER, England, Feb. 27. —The famous Bellevue Gardens at Manchester, of which a great many Canadians will have fond recollections, are being turned over to a London syndicate. For fifty years these "gardens" have drawn millions of north country people with their varied entertainments, to say nothing of the occasional monster political demonstrations, and the perpetual shilling tea, which, it is believed, was the best in the world. The gardens throughout their career have hitherto been in sole control of the Jennison family.

Hundreds Throng First Annual Radio Exhibit

Mayor Carl Pendray Officiates at Opening of Victoria Radio Club's Show in Porter Building—First Organization to Hold Exhibition of Its Kind—Many Attractive Displays Arranged by Local Dealers and Amateurs—Novelties Attract Attention

HUNDREDS of enthusiastic radio fans througed the Porter Building, last night, on the opening of the first annual exhibition held under the auspices of the Victoria Radio Club, after the show had been officially opened by Mayor Carl Pendray. The exhibition, which is the first of its kind to be organized in Canada by any group of radio fans, has a large number of entries, and the ingenuity shown in many of the exhibits is remarkable.

In opening the exhibition, the Mayor dwelt briefly on the advancements in radio. He told about his father having the first telephone in Victoria, the line of connections being from where the Empress Hotel laundry site is now, to the corner of Yates and Government Streets, and of the sensation it held for the people of that time; how they used to come and look the machine over and talk to their friends around the corner. "This," the Mayor said, "was considered a miracle in those days; but when one looks at the present-day radio, one cannot help being impressed by the possibilities." He congratulated the club on its splendid exhibition, and hoped it would be a real entertainment and education to those who could find the time to visit it.

Displays Attractive

The quarters in the Porter Building were brilliantly decorated and lighted for the opening, and the exhibits of the dealers and amateurs shows that they have gone to considerable expense and trouble in making their displays artistically attractive. The novelty radio exhibition is particularly interesting, while the sets which have been placed in for competition by amateur builders demonstrate the amount of interest which is being taken in radio.

Among the various stall holders is the Victoria Red Cross Workshop. In its display, several cabinets of unique design are on show, and some of the engraving work is of the highest class.

Interesting Novelties

Probably the most sought after display in the building is the novelty exhibition. Some of the sets are particularly notable, being made in all shapes and sizes. One which caused a great deal of curiosity was made in a walnut, while several others made on match boxes, birds' nests, pocket-book, fan, thimble, peanut, books, and several other freak places, drew direct attention. All these sets, when set up, are able to receive perfectly.

Practically every radio dealer in the city has an exhibit in the show, and the very latest devices for the improvement of machines are on view. The Western Canada Radio Corporation has the "B" battery eliminator. This machine is one of the first of its kind ever shown in Canada, and does away with all "B" batteries, being run from an electric light socket.

Many other firms, including Sprott-Shaw School, C. & W. Radio, Jim Bryant, Mr. Frampton, E. G. Prior, Crowther Brothers, Minty & White, Dominion Government, and Weller Auto Supply House, have splendid exhibits, demonstrating the various machines on the market and the latest accessories.

Several home-made sets of various kinds, from crystal to eight-tube super-heterodynes, are on view. These are in classes for competition, and from the number of entries received it looks as if the judges will have their hands full picking out the winners. The judging of these machines and sets will take place this morning.

Continues Today

Throughout the evening several high-powered receivers were in action, and concerts from distant stations were coming in. The show will be open today from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., and will most likely be kept open on Monday afternoon and evening, so as to give those attending plenty of opportunity to see everything.

WINTER'S WORST TIE-UP THREATENS IN MONCTON

Toronto Reports Winds of Hurricane Force in Some Parts of Province—Damage in Maine

QUEBEC, Feb. 27. — Doors and gates blown from their fastenings, windows blown in, the city in partial darkness for a time yesterday evening, branches of trees torn off and hurled through the air, the fire brigade called out seventeen times, many people blown off their feet, street car service paralyzed and many narrow escapes from automobile collisions were a few results of a terrible gale that swept this city and district last evening and which is considered the worst storm in recent years.

Says Britain's First Concern Is Building Empire Prosperity

Mr. Frank Simonds, Investigator, Declares European Situation Merely Annoying Side Issue—Restoration of Junker Ambitions in Germay Will Be Repelled

USELESS TO BLOCK TEUTON AIM TO EXTEND BOUNDARIES

By FRANK H. SIMONDS

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Turning to Germany, the British regard the recovery of the Reich as already assured. They feel certain that within a brief span of years Germany will almost automatically recover her position as the greatest of the Continental states. Quite in the same way they are satisfied that while it is conceivable, even likely, that Germany may accept the Western settlement of Paris, there is not the smallest chance that she will submit to the mutilations of the East. They are convinced, then, that all Germany's efforts will be directed toward the regaining of the lost provinces, which include Upper Silesia, Dantzig, the Polish corridor and perhaps Posen.

And the cardinal point in British opinion is that it is perfectly useless to undertake to block this German purpose. British desire and diplomacy is rather directed at producing a situation in which this inescapable process may be carried on without menace to the general peace of Europe, that, in practice, there may be some way found for allowing a peaceful revision of the Paris treaties so far as the west is concerned. This inevitably implies that, under the influence of British policy, France, today the guarantor of the eastern settlement in Europe, will withdraw its support, as it feels assured that changes in the east will not compromise its position in the west.

British optimism, then, envisages German acceptance of the historic frontiers of the west, just as it assumes German success in modifying those in the east. It expects Germany to regain its eastern provinces and, in addition, to find a way to include Austria within its own frontiers. Indeed, it expects that Germany will enter the League of Nations perhaps mainly to work for some form of amendment of the League Covenant which will permit revision of the treaties in her favor.

Disquiet Grows

On the other hand one must note that there is present, and even mounting, British disquiet as to German conditions. The possibility of some form of restoration is recognized, but even this is not so disturbing as the tone which the Nationalist press and orators are beginning to take now that the Dawes plan has resulted in the striking amelioration of German material conditions, while the politic-

ADMIT SITUATION AT DIARBEKR DOUBTFUL

General Position in Central Portions Declared to Be More Favorable Than Stated

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 27.—The Government today contradicted the report that the rebellious Kurdish forces had captured Diarbekr, which is the headquarters of the Turkish army corps. The situation in Diarbekr was described as doubtful, but the general position in Central Kurdistan was reported to be more favorable. At Kharput, about 80 miles northwest of Diarbekr, the populace, it is stated, exasperated at the depredations of the rebels, attacked and expelled them.

The Turkish military operations against the rebels under Sheik Said in Kurdistan will, it is reported, be directed by General Ismet Pasha or Kemal Eddin Pasha. The Government has ordered a partial mobilization in Anatolia, calling upon reservists in the Vilayets bordering on the rebel area.

A circular issued by the insurgents appeals to the population in the following words:

"Your Caliph awaits you. No Mohammedanism is possible without the Caliphate. The present Government is opposed to religion."

Panama Declares State Of War Owing to Indian Uprising in San Blas

PANAMA, Feb. 27.—The National Assembly today declared the district of San Blas in a state of siege owing to the recent uprising of the Indians there, in which a number of Panamans were slain. The Government received this message from the chief of police of Portvenir, Nargana, Playon Chico and Tupile have been attacked by Indians and the assistant chief of police and all the policemen killed. Tonight an attack is expected on Islapinos, and tomorrow on Puerto Obladia. The Indians are well armed. We need urgent reinforcements."

A radio message from Portvenir, San Blas territory, says that the Panamen forces were landed there today. The Indians are said to have withdrawn on the arrival of the Panamans. It is announced here that there will be no advance of the Panaman troops pending the outcome of negotiations which are going on to bring about a readjustment of conditions in the San Blas territory

JERUSALEM ASSOCIATIONS PREPARE FOR LORD BALFOUR

Christian-Moslem Arrange Demonstration in Connection With British Leader's "Declaration"

JERUSALEM, Feb. 27.—The executive of the Christian-Moslem Associations in Jerusalem is determined to make the day of Lord Balfour's arrival in Palestine a day of protest, it is indicated in cables sent out by the Palestine Arab committee. Lord Balfour and other prominent persons are expected to arrive here in connection with the opening of the Hebrew University on April 1.

Lord Balfour is the author of the famous "Balfour declaration" that Great Britain would use her best endeavors to facilitate the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people.

The day of Lord Balfour's arrival the Arabs in Palestine will cease work and assemble in their places of worship, the authorities of the Moslem holy places and the national institutions will refuse to receive Lord Balfour, and the Arab press will on that day carry black borders, according to the programme outlined by the Arab executive.

PASSENGER TRAIN CRASHES INTO PLOW

FATAL ACCIDENT TO TRACK CLEARING GANG

Ice and Snow Alleged to Have Prevented Proper Working of Switch and Accident Follows

MONTREAL, Feb. 27.—Alphonse St. Jean was instantly killed and Joseph Franc and Leopold Desjardins succumbed later to injuries received when the Canadian Pacific Railway local No. 426 from Calumet to Montreal crashed into a snowplow about one-half mile from Lachute, Quebec. All the men were members of the crew of the plow.

The snowplow had switched into a siding to permit the Calumet to pass, but the local swung into the same switch and, traveling at full speed, crashed into the standing plow.

The engine of the passenger train mounted the cab and crushed St. Jean among debris, also pinning down both Desjardins and Franc.

A statement issued by the C. P. R. headquarters here tonight indicates the accumulation of snow and ice as a probable cause of derailment of the locomotive.

There will be an inquest.

His Royal Highness' Timely Remittance Saves Suspension From Union

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The New York Pressmen's Union was spared the painful necessity of suspending its star member, the Prince of Wales, when a cheque for $7, representing two months' dues, was received from him today. The rules of the union provide for the suspension of any member who fails to pay his dues every two months. On Saturday this period of grace for the Prince would have expired, and had he not paid he would have been barred from plying the trade in any union pressroom here. When Wales was made a member of the union last Summer he paid his dues in advance to January 1.

Tea growers are making such tremendous profits that over-production is bound to come at any time.

MISS ROCKEFELLER'S POSTNUPTIAL LIFE

INTERESTING FORECAST FOR RICHEST HEIRESS IN U.S.

Quidnuncs Stipulate That She Shall Live Within Her Husband's Means and Walk

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—When Abby Rockefeller, the nation's richest heiress, marries her childhood sweetheart, David M. Milton, jr., who works for a living, she will do part of her own housework, live within her husband's income, as a lawyer; and will not have an automobile.

Her father, John D. Rockefeller, jr., has announced that Abby would be well qualified to live as the wife of a comparatively poor man because she had been taught the value of money.

At the age of eight, Abby received 30 cents each week, 10 cents of which went to the weekly church collection, 10 cents to a savings account—which left the world's richest youngster 10 cents to squander. A few years later she received a whole dollar to be responsible for; none of the children ever had more than two dollars a week to account for.

"Although I have no intention of giving my children great amounts of money to spend in any passing mood, I do not mean that they will be cramped for funds for any worthy enterprise," Mr. Rockefeller said through his spokesman.

At first the young wife will have only one servant, her father's spokesman said, and when the couple go motoring it will probably be in a machine borrowed from one of their parents. Later, of course, they expect to save enough to buy a cosy little car.

REASSURES AS TO CHICAGO DIVERSION

Premier Informs Ottawa House That Assurances Have Been Given as to Future Operations

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—That the diversion of water from the Great Lakes through the Chicago Drainage Canal should be taken up officially with the Washington government through the British Ambassador, was urged upon the House of Commons yesterday evening by T. L. Church, Conservative, North Toronto.

Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, said that the protests of Canada against this "illegal diversion" had passed through the hands of the British Ambassador. Proceedings were being watched by representatives of the Dominion Government and he thought that pressure brought to bear would bring results.

After Premier Mackenzie King had assured Mr. Church that the Canadian Government had protested strongly against the diversion, and had stated that no permit for further diversion which was not essential to the health of Chicago, should be granted, Mr. Church withdrew his resolution.

ALASKAN GLACIER RESERVE SET ASIDE

Huge Area on Southeast Coast of the Peninsula Is Proclaimed as National Monument

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The first glacial monument ever established by the Government was created in a presidential proclamation issued today on recommendation of Secretary Work, setting aside an area of 1,820 square miles on the southeast coast of Alaska. It will be known as Glacier Bay national monument.

With the endorsement of the National Geographic Society, the monument was created on petition of the Geological Service of America, which pointed out that the region affords unique opportunity for a scientific study of glacier movements and of ancient interglacial forests.

Since the first records of its attractions were written by Captain Vancouver, the explorer, in 1794, the area has been a centre of interest to glacialists and scientists.

Critics Defend Saxophone—Put Onus on Jazz Artists—Japan Rebuilds Thunder God—To Exploit British Dresses

LONDON—A good word at last has been said for the saxophone. Quite a number of letter writers to London newspapers have come to the defence of the instrument and by argument and facts have endeavored to shift the onus on to the jazz saxophonist—and not the instrument itself.

The saxophone was not an accident by any means, it is explained in The Star, having been invented by Antoine Joseph Sax, born at Dinant, Belgium, on November 6, 1814, the son of a reed instrument maker. He studied at the Brussels Conservatoire of Music and his proficiency on both the flute and clarinet became marked. There were many opportunities for Sax to become a musician of note, but he preferred to return to the bench.

Moving to Paris in 1842, Sax produced the first "saxhorn" in 1843. In 1846 a soprano saxophone was manufactured and patented, followed by the family of the alto, tenor and baritone saxophone. Sax, however, failed to profit by his work and at the age of 72 he died penniless and pretty well forgotten even in musical circles.

TOKIO—Kaminarimon, or Gate of the Thunder God, one of the sights of ancient Yedo, destroyed by fire some seventy years ago, is to be rebuilt. It will be on its old site at the entrance of what is now Asakusa Park and the funds are to be raised by popular subscription through the efforts of the priests of the numerous temples in that neighborhood.

It is planned to spend about $350,000 on the edifice, the design of which has been entrusted to a noted Japanese architect who is an authority on the ancient architecture of the country. It will be of solid vermillion lacquer below the roof. The plan for the reconstruction of Tokio makes the project feasible after years of agitation.

LONDON—Another terror will shortly be added to the quiet-loving old ladies in the distant suburbs and rural England. This is a baby airplane fitted with a 60-horsepower engine, which the makers claim can be stored in a garage at the bottom of a garden, has folding wings, contains a self-starter and can take off from a comparatively confined space.

The object of the makers is to bring flying within the reach of a larger number of the public and eventually make the airplane as popular as the motor car.

LONDON—A company is being formed with a capital of $500,000 for the establishment in London and other cities of an exhibition for the sale of model dresses made from English and Scotch dress fabrics. The models will be sold to wholesale houses and particulars supplied of the firms who made them so that wholesalers may then sell to the retail trade.

Stewart Man Sued for $10,000 for Jilting Girl From London, England

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27.—Claiming $10,000 general damages and $350 special damages, Lottie Maud Munn, formerly of London, Eng., suing John J. Haahti, mine owner of Stewart, B.C., for breach of promise to marry, testified in court this morning that all arrangements for their marriage were effected by exchange of letters and photographs before they ever met. Miss Munn stated that following a suggestion that she come to Canada to marry Haahti, she came out to Hamilton, Ont., where she worked for a year as a stenographer. After further correspondence, she testified, Haahti induced her to leave for Stewart and that on arrival in Vancouver she received a telegram stating that "everything was off," which she ignored, proceeding on to her destination.

If no action is taken by the Provinces within three months the Solicitor-General of the Federal Government may take action.

HEAVY DAMAGES FOR FALSE ARREST

GERMAN AWARDED $6,000 AT VANCOUVER

Court Finds Action of Railroad Inspector in Detaining Plaintiff Was Not Warranted

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27.—Damages in the sum of $6,000 were today awarded by a Supreme Court jury to Frederick Lobb against O. J. Wheatley, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, Canadian Northern Pacific Railway Company, and Canadian National Railway Company, for false arrest and imprisonment.

Argument is proceeding before the trial judge, Mr. Justice Murphy, on an application by defending counsel that the action should be dismissed against the defendant companies because Wheatley, inspector of the C.N.R. investigation department for British Columbia, was not acting within the scope of his employment when he arrested Lobb.

Lobb is a native of Germany, and was conscripted into the German army. Subsequently, from 1913 to 1922, he was a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, which he left with an excellent record.

Lobb had testified that Wheatley had arrested him in March, 1924, on fictitious evidence that he had robbed a box car of Hops of an amount of merchandise. The defence endeavored to prove that Lobb himself had faked the informing telephone message with the intention of suing for false arrest. The jury found that this was not so; that Wheatley acted within the scope of his employment when he arrested Lobb; and that Wheatley did not on "reasonable and probable grounds" believe that a crime had been committed. It was on this last finding that damages were awarded.

OPEN LAMPS CLAIM MANY MINERS' LIVES

Over Three Thousand Deaths During Eighteen Years Is Record in United States

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 27.—Open flame lamps caused 129 large coal mine explosions in the United States during the past eighteen years and 3,154 lives were lost as a result, according to George S. Rice, of the United States Bureau of Mines, who was before the Utah Industrial Commission here yesterday, during a discussion of the open flame lamp question. Mr. Rice made it plain that his figures did not include mine mishaps in which five or less miners met death.

In 1924, he said, three explosions started by ignition of firedamp by open lights, killed 324 men.

The Bureau of Mines, according to Mr. Rice, has investigated and is directing its attention to the providing of miners with lamps which will not ignite gas.

"BATHTUB PATIENT" FINALLY SUCCUMBS

After Year of Agony From Injured Spine, Man at El Paso, Texas Passed Away

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 27.—John Porter, aged twenty-two, confined for the past four months to a bathtub filled with water because he could not lie in any other position due to pain from bed sores, has been relieved from his agony. Porter died yesterday at William Beaumont Hospital on the military reservation after months of suffering. An autopsy is being performed to determine the exact cause of death.

Porter's case attracted nation-wide attention. He was known as the "bathtub patient" in the big base hospital because he was forced to live night and day in a bathtub. The water always was kept warm and conditions were made as comfortable as possible for him.

Porter was injured one year ago at Fort Bliss while encamped with the New Mexico National Guard. He fell backward over a bale of hay and injured his spine.

FORMULATE 1925 ROAD PROGRAMME

COUNCIL WILL SPEND $16,000 ON ROAD CONSTRUCTION

Committee Will Consider Question of Sidewalk in Front of Crystal Garden—To Remove Broom

The 1925 programme of road construction, involving an estimated total cost of $16,400, was formulated yesterday afternoon by the Public Works Committee of the City Council.

The programme is as follows:

New road on reserve from existing road to cooperage plant, $2,000.

Rosebery Street from Ryan to King's, $1,200.

Fifth Street, from King's to Bay, $600.

Merrit Street, from Highview to Cook, $2,000.

Victor Street, from Pembroke to Denman, $1,000.

Ryan Street, from Victor to Shakespeare, $800.

Shakespeare, from Ryan to Morley, $1,200.

Lionel Street, from School to Shakespeare, $800.

Walker Street, from McCaskill to South, $600.

Scott Street, from Myrtle to South, $1,200.

Metchosin Street, from Quamichan to Madison, $1,000.

Mill Street, from Government to Bay, $2,200. (Asphalt concrete.)

The question of a sidewalk in front of the Crystal Garden will be considered after a committee has examined the site and reported findings.

The road programme does not include provision for repairing Doncaster Street between Hillside and Myrtle Streets for the reason, the City Engineer said, that this section of the street will not give accommodation to any houses that are not served by other roads.

"This particular section of Doncaster Street is traversed by Bowker Creek, and the cost of boxing this in, as requested last year, has been included in the estimates under the item 'sewer and surface drain construction,'" the City Engineer said.

Alderman Marchant, chairman of the Parks and Boulevards Committee, stated that the work of clearing away broom at Beacon Hill, where it obstructs the view, will be carried on to the utmost extent that available funds will allow.

The City Solicitor will be asked to report on the legal aspects of the proposal to heve the present thick growth of trees along Chaplin Street and Heywood Avenue thinned out.

Tenders for the supplying of water pipe for Hillside Avenue will be called for immediately by the City Engineer.

REDUCES ASSESSMENTS ON ESQUIMALT LOTS

Judgment Given by Judge Lampman on Appeal From the Municipal Revision

Judgment was handed down in the County Court yesterday by Judge Lampman in a list of appeals that had been taken before him a few days before from the court of revision of Esquimalt. The appeals were all with reference to unimproved lots standing in the names of J. W. Tolmie, Hannah M. Wood and Helen L. Wood. In the case of the Tolmie property, it was pointed out in the judgment that it represented four lots measuring 38.9 feet by 92 feet and the assessment was $1,650.

His honor calls attention to the fact that the policy of the council was evidently one of maintaining the assessment high rather than making the rate higher. He says: "By the statute I am not allowed to fix policies—it is my duty to fix the values." He therefore felt that the assessments were in excess of the values of the properties, and he accordingly reduced them 20 per cent in each of these cases.

In alluding to the fact that Esquimalt had so far been able to carry on without any levy upon improvements, his honor suggested that if it was to avoid the reversion of unimproved land for taxes that it might find it necessary to look into the question of taxing improvements to some extent.

Manitoba Officials Capture Largest Still

BRANDON, Feb. 27.—The Royal Canadian Mounted Police and revenue officers captured the largest still ever discovered in Western Manitoba when they raided the farm of Frank Decock, Delat, Man., this week. Decock was charged under the Revenue Act, and was fined $400 and costs at Souris, Men., Thursday. He admitted manufacturing thirty gallons of liquor a day. Sixteen forty-gallon barrels of mash were discovered by the police in a dugout underneath the stable on the Decock farm. All the most up-to-date equipment for the manufacture of illicit liquor was also found.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly
The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $5.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make 16 ounces—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

ARCH FOR QUADRA STREET IS SCHEME

The Kiwanis Club yesterday afternoon submitted for the approval of the City Council the design for a rough timber arch which it is proposed to erect at the corner of Quadra Street and Tolmie Avenue, the entrance to the city from the north.

The necessary material for the arch has already been donated, the Council was informed. The city will be asked to illuminate the arch at night.

The plan was referred to the city engineer and the city solicitor for report, after Alderman Woodward had remarked that he would rather see the Kiwanis Club interesting itself in the construction of children's playgrounds after the fashion of the Vancouver service clubs.

It was suggested that, because of the condition of the corner at Quadra and Tolmie, it would be preferable to erect the arch at the intersection of Quadra and Finlayson, at the summit of the hill.

SAYS BRITAIN'S FIRST CONCERN IS BUILDING EMPIRE PROSPERITY

al combinations have brought the Nationalists back into power. The British are unpleasantly conscious of the fact that once more German Nationalism is speaking in the tone, adopting the manner, reclaiming the purposes of the pre-war time.

If one were to assume that this tendency continued to develop, then there is every reason to believe that Britain would take a very definite line; to put the thing bluntly, there is no disposition here to permit a Junker and aggressive Germany to regain its pre-war strength and work steadily toward a moment, selected by itself, to force a new war. I think one may dismiss as unimportant, British apprehension of the evil consequences of economic competition of a restored but peaceful Germany. I do not think one can exaggerate the British determination to forestall any development of a hostile and aggressive Germany.

Without Conflict

Actually the British view recalls the historic words of Horace Greeley in the reverse direction, "go east, young man," would seem to be the British admonition and the British are anxious that German excursion eastward should not be blocked to a degree which would dam German energy and result in an ultimate flood on all frontiers. A new partition of Poland to the advantage of Germany, of a Germany which accepted western decisions, the British are prepared to sanction, and hope to make possible without conflict.

But everything now depends upon the spirit of Germany in the next few months. The danger to world peace, to European safety now seems to London to threaten, if at all, from Germany; there is a feeling that the evolution of Germany toward peace or war may well be determined within the next few months. To remove all incitation to Junker violence, the British are working to get the whole matter of the evacuation of the Rhineland established on a definite basis, so that the Germans may be satisfied that this evacuation will follow schedule.

All British conceptions and purposes are now, obviously, at the mercy of any sudden explosion in Germany or of any slower but only less obvious development of Germany toward belligerent purposes. And under the surface you feel a very marked British intention to leave Germany with no such uncertainty, as to British action in such a crisis, as so dreadfully and perhaps fatally compromised the situation in July, 1914.

Looking now to Russia, again one feels the British view to be that the various territorial settlements of Paris were absurd. Russia, despite election hysteria, does not appear a danger, on the other hand there is the universal expectation that within a time, the extent of which cannot perhaps be fixed, Russia will again reappear as a great power, and when she appears she will not for a moment accept the decisions of Paris which deprived her of her Baltic facade and of all her acquisitions in western Europe.

Horrified by Protocol

Thus, again, the British look with positive horror upon the proposed commitments of the Protocol, which would involve all western Europe and specifically France and Britain in a contract to defend the smaller Baltic states against Russia, as it would obligate them to defend Poland against Germany.

That such a position would insure a Russo-German alliance against the West, the British feel inevitable, but such an alliance would mean war, and terrific war; it would also almost certainly bring Japan to the Russo-German side and carry the conflict into Asia, where Britain is most vulnerable and most sensitive. And from this possibility British opinion instinctvely shrinks.

By and large, then, one can see that British public opinion of the informed and of the official sort accepts the recovery of Germany and of Russia to something like their pre-war stature as only a question of time. And it views both probabilities without undue alarm. In fact, it sees them as inescapable consequences of obvious facts. It looks to the collapse of Bolshevism in the end; it hopes that in Germany there will be a similar decline of aggressive Nationalism. Beyond all else, it hopes to avoid, both for itself and for France, the adoption of policies which may give fresh impetus to two vigorous national reintegrations, which is accepts as foreordained.

As to the rest of Europe, the British view is less precise and British interest less general. There is the same conviction that much of the frontier drawing in the Danubian region is wholly provisional and temporary; that, for example, revisions in favor of Hungary are almost assured; but it does not feel that these need threaten the general peace of the continent unless they are combined with the unsettled problems of Russia and Germany.

But, again, you must perceive the characteristic working of the British mind, its fundamental quarrel with the protocol, as calculated to freeze the existing frontiers in the east of Europe and leave no possible method of revision, save that of war, while committing Britain and all member nations of the League in advance to make war to oppose all revisions. Which, after all, is a very human state of mind.

Italy and Spain

As to Italy—and Spain as well—the British recognize the enduring possibility of explosions which may have very grave domestic consequences, but they do not regard either situation as carrying any menace to the general situation. Whether Mussolini will fall or be able to effect a transition from a revolutionary to a constitutional status is a matter for speculation. Mussolini, on the whole, has a very bad press in England, and has never been regarded as favorably as in America. But, to use an old phrase, any Italian disturbance seems in London to be sure to be "localized," and therefore not of present importance so far as the general European problem is concerned; it renders Italy perhaps negligible, but not in any sense a menace.

In sum, all British preoccupation is over the Franco-German situation and the eventual Russian problem. Apprehension as to Germany is limited to the fear that some Nationalist explosion will at one moment sweep the German situation and upset the present peaceful French regime and temper. For a Junker restoration would infallibly close the likelihood of French retirement from the Rhine, put Poincare and Millerand in control in France, and lead, not to French evacuation, but perhaps to French advance, to prevent which Britain would be powerless, even assuming that she were minded to intervene. But I should not exaggerate the apprehension: such a German event is not generally feared or even largely discussed; it is, if I may say it, rather the one large element of present uncertainty, the single fact which measurably tends to provoke discount of an otherwise favorable outlook in Europe.

Empire Prosperity First

One word more as to British conceptions. Underlying all else in British desire to promote tranquillity in Europe is the double desire and necessity to restore economic prosperity within Britain and to leave British hands clear for the consolidation of the vast Imperial structure which is the British Empire. By comparison with this latter consideration, Europe is, after all, a minor, if annoying, detail. It is not to Europe, but to the Dominions that the British are looking for the future; they are acutely conscious of the fact that proximity to Europe compels them to be interested in European affairs, but that commitments within Europe and exhausting responsibilities may have an evil effect imperially, that the real consolidation of their vast Empire depends in no small degree upon their ability to live peacefully in Europe and to escape new calls upon the blood and treasure of their Dominions in Continental Europe.

And the sum total of all British policy now is to persuade France and Germany to accept as final the western decisions of the treaty of Versailles, to get France to accept a British guarantee of western security in return for a prompt evacuation of the Ruhr and the Rhineland, with the Sarre, at the same time resigning her role as guarantor of the present status quo in the east, to persuade Germany to resign claims to Alsace-Lorraine and purposes of a war of revenge in return for present evacuation of the Rhineland and eventual revision of the treaties affecting her eastern frontiers.

Add to this the British desire to prevent the adoption by the League of the protocol in its present form, which would prevent revision of the eastern treaties both as they affect Germany and Russia, and thus transform it into an alliance of the old Allied and Succession States, insuring a counter-alliance of Germany, Russia and Hungary, and instead to provide machinery for ultimate peaceful revision of these treaties in the direction the British regard as inevitable, and I think you have a fair picture of the British view at the present hour.

MOTOR CASES IN COURT

Several Alleged Infractions of Regulations Came Up for Hearing Before Magistrate

A number of cases involving the proper handling of motor cars came before the police magistrate yesterday morning. Of these Mrs. Hilda Napier, who was defended by Mr. J. B. Clearihue, acquitted herself of the charge of having neglected to stop in rear of a street car while the latter was taking on and discharging passengers.

Lee Chung was charged with displaying no rear light on his car. Through his solicitor, Mr. R. C. Lowe, he pleaded guilty, the explanation being offered that there had been no intention of violating the regulations but the accused had trusted to a friend to see that the lights were kept burning and he had gone off on other duties. He was fined $5.

Dr. F. M. Bryant had omitted to remove his car from the prescribed area until after an hour had elapsed and was fined $1. Mr. J. B. Clearihue pleading guilty for him.

THE ARBITRATION PRINCIPLE

The Geneva Protocol is at best a theoretical document achieved by visionaries. Probably every nation believes in the arbitration principle in order to obviate the necessity of war. What every nation is not ready to sanction is its own part in enforcing such aribitration. It is a question of what are the conditions under which aribitration will be enforced. The very threat of enforcing arbitration implies in itself the possibility of war, and it must imply it in connection with those nations which refuse to sign the Protocol, even though they may be members of the League. The Protocol has been hailed by some as a new magna charta for the human race. It is nothing of the kind, inasmuch as its text is blurred with obscurities and it is those very obscurities that are making nations hesitate about subscribing to its terms. Before there can be such a Protocol that is to be workable there must be a linking up of relationships between States and a clear-cut definition of what each would be prepared to do to lend both moral and material force to bring about arbitration in connection with international difficulties. The Protocol, to be effective, must have the sanction of the entire membership of the League of Nations, and this cannot be secured while the document exists in its present state.

Here is the situation as it stands. The provision for sanctions as outlined by the Protocol is so loose that no one knows exactly what any particular nation would be expected to do in the matter of enforcing arbitration. The supposed "political unit" within the League is so elastic that it is conceivable that one section of the Empire might invoke League authority against another. It is not even defined what is the relationship of the British Government towards the Dominions in reference to the League's Councils, and in this connection it may be said that Britain and the Dominions consider that this is a matter for their own settlement without any interference. The League wants a mandate of a character that will not be given. The Protocol would override the sanctions of the Parliaments of the various countries involved where crises arise. The League of Nations has been doing good work, but in the matter of the Protocol that document was hastily conceived, is visionary in its outline, and cannot be subscribed to as the charter of the League hereafter, because it infringes too heavily on the national authority of Parliaments and Governments.

PULPWOOD EMBARGO

MacLean's Magazine of February 15 contains a strong plea for the putting into force of an embargo on pulpwood from this country, and it is only one of a growing multitude of similar pleas coming from all quarters of the country. This article points out that aside from the newsprint companies which are having their own difficulties at present, all other branches of the industry—sulphite, mechanical and kraft pulps, fine papers, wrappings and board—are, with few exceptions, in a critical state in Canada. At a time when this is happening, The Chicago Tribune is erecting a $5,000,000 plant in New York State and is drawing its raw materials from Ontario and Quebec, and, as well, taking competent labor from this country. Thus the dual menace is provided of forest and population depletion.

It is estimated that as much as 750,000 cords of pulpwood were exported from the Province of Quebec in one year. This is equivalent to 500,000 tons of newsprint. The wood is believed to have netted $3,500,000 to Quebec interests. Had it been manufactured in Canada its worth to the country at last year's selling price would have been $25,000,000. As Mr. Frank W. Clarke, the chairman of the mechanical pulp section of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, says, "we are supplying our competitors with raw material to our undoing." The article in MacLean's says Canada has convicing experience of the value of an embargo. It has been tested both in Ontario and Quebec as far as Crown lands are concerned, and has resulted in the establishment of the great Canadian pulp and paper industry as it stands today. This action affected 85 per cent of the forest wealth in those two provinces. Otherwise a tragic depletion of forest resources is in progress, and, in addition, by competition, a great potential Canadian industry is menaced.

It is recalled in the article to which we are alluding that in the early part of 1923 Parliament voted the Government power to impose an embargo. On June 26, 1923, the Export Act was amended to provide for a pulpwood embargo. Then something happened. The Government changed its mind. It passed a secret order-in-council which prevented the embargo from taking effect, and the assumption is that this was passed at the sole request of American interests and their Canadian associates who profit by the exploitation of Canada's natural resources. Soon afterwards a Pulpwood Commission was appointed by the Government to investigate the question of an embargo. After an expenditure of upwards of $70,000, it brought in a finding that it takes the view that the actual determination of a policy must rest with the Government. It left matters were they stood. The issue is a national one and Parliament has decided for an embargo, which the Government has refused to put into force. The situation is one that should be reconsidered at the present session of Parliament. It would be no exaggeration to say that from 80 to 90 per cent of the people of Canada want this embargo imposed so as to preserve a great natural resource for their own uses.

LIQUOR LAW ENFORCEMENT

The Liquor Control Act permits the Attorney-General's Department of the Provincial Government to intervene in municipalities where it is alleged the law is not being enforced and to take from the municipalities' share of liquor profits whatever sums are spent through such intervention. The point is that before there is such intervention the attention of municipalities should be directed to their shortcomings. As matters now stand money is being expended uselessly. We are having dual police control in certain municipalities and, among others, in Victoria, and we do not see wherein law enforcement is benefiting. The municipalities are quite competent to conduct their own police administration and the Provincial Government has a sufficiently heavy task on its own hands in looking after the unorganized districts without intervening and putting municipalities to expenses that are unwarranted.

Under the dispensation of a new Liquor Commission it is to be hoped that there will be more cordial relations between the Government and the municipalities in the matter of the enforcement of the Liquor Control Act. The municipalities are spending enough money on their police forces for all practical purposes. They do not require the assistance of the Provincial Police or of the operatives of the Liquor Control Board, and if they should at any time need such aid then it should be by a process of mutual arrangement not through governmental interjection without any consultation with the municipalities concerned. The Liquor Control Board seems to have built up an army of secret operatives and there are those who maintain that this has been done for party political purposes. The best way to disabuse the public mind of such a suspicion is to disband an army which is serving no useful purpose, and which is, indeed, bringing law enforcement into disrepute. In the unorganized districts the Provincial Police are amply sufficient to enforce the Liquor Control Act, just as the municipal police are within organized territory.

The Cape Argus says: "Tielman Roos at Kimberley foreshadows the building of its own ships by the Government, frankly admitting that his statement was in the nature of a threat to the shipping companies, the implication, of course, being that they were not adequately meeting the public requirements. It might have been expected that the example of Australia, where an enormous loss has been incurred on the Commonwealth Shipping Line, would have convinced even Mr. Roos of the folly of such a policy, to say nothing of America, where the Government would rather give their ships away than run them. In a recent speech in London, Lord Incheape declared that it would have paid ship-owning governments better to have sunk their ships rather than to have kept them running during the last four years. In Australia, several of the Commonwealth liners are laid up because it is cheaper than working them."

The London Morning Post says: "Now it has become evident that most people are spending more than they can really afford upon food. The remedy lies with the housewife. If enough admirable ladies decide to use a stricter discretion in marketing, prices will gradually fall. There is a good deal of artificiality about prices. It is largely a question of labels. Because a particular article is arbitrarily ticketed the best, it does not follow that the description is accurate. If the housewife insists on having good stuff, whatever legend the label may bear, she will eventually get it; but not, perhaps, unless she is persistent and even ruthless."

If the price of $3,542.22 incurred by the Provincial Government in enforcing the Liquor Control Act in Victoria, without the cognizance of the Police Commission or the City authorities, is now regarded as satisfactory to that Police Commission, we can only assume that its members favor the use of "stool pigeons."

The vocabulary of the average person, apart from slang, does not seem to exceed a few hundred words. Shakespeare is credited with having had a vocabulary of 24,000 words. There is hope, however, for the human race now that crossword puzzles are the vogue.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

British trade unionists sent to spy out the land in Russia report that they have made an amazing discovery. They say conditions in Russia have been vindictively misrepresented. They practically say that Russia is the only genuine land of the free and home of the brave. The women of Russia are the free and the men of the Red Army are the brave.

* * *

Women under the Soviet regime have been made entirely independent of men. "What is right for a man is right for a woman." But freedom for woman in Russia, like freedom in general everywhere else, carries responsibilities with it. Woman's responsibilities are just the same as man's responsibilities. "Marriage is a contract by which both parties are equally bound." But the marriage contract is not binding beyond the bounds of convenience. It may be dissolved without loss of time and without expense by mutual consent. An illegitimate child and its mother have exactly the same status, legally, morally and socially, we may presume, as the legitimate child and its mother. Illicit marriage is rendered unnecessary by liberal facilities for divorce. Love is free in Russia. What more could the heart of a liberal-minded man or woman desire? Therefore Russia is the land of the free.

* * *

The case of the Red Army demonstrates that Russia is the home of the brave as well as the land of the free. The Red Army is not at all like the ordinary armies of ordinary countries. It is maintained for the purpose of defending the liberty of working class institutions. Its morale is unsurpassed. The British trade union delegates were accorded the unwonted privilege of beholding a detachment of this wonderful army giving a demonstration of the results of training. The army is trained primarily for the purpose of developing its intelligence.

* * *

Lest Communists, who have been taught that armies in general are maintained for the purpose of maintaining institutions for oppression of the people, the trade unionist delegation explains to the British people that the Red Army is maintained for the purpose of defending institutions representative of the freedom of the people. Russia is, of course, at present governed by dictators, and the Red Army is maintained strictly for the purpose of enforcing the decrees of the dictatorship. Notwithstanding such apparent anomalies, the British trade unionist delegates maintain that conditions in Russia are ideal. There is nothing quite comparable with them in any other part of the world, which, of course, may be strictly true.

* * *

However, one cannot have everything, even in Russia. There must be limits set to the bounds of freedom even in the land of the freest and the home of the bravest. The press is not absolutely free in Russia. In fact, there is no press at all as we understand the term. Such newspapers as there are are not permitted to say any ill of the Government. If any rash editor were caught printing anything disparaging to the Government, or to the Communist Party, the Red Army would speedily attend to his case. That is what the Red Army is kept for—that and being ready at all times to defend Russia against the aggressions of unprogressive foreign countries. The new dictator of Russia already has told the Red Army, as Lenine and Trotzky periodically told it, that benighted foreign governments were at all times conniving and scheming for the violent suppression of liberty in Russia.

* * *

Consequently the newspapers of Russia are not self-supporting. They are kept alive by subsidies directly from the Government or from the organizations which keep the Government in power. Newspapers are part of the educational system, therefore they are entitled to Government succor when they become hard up. We wonder if other departments of the Russian educational system are quite as peculiar as the Russian newspaper educational institutions. Government in this country and in other countries which do not enjoy the boundless freedom of the Russians might not govern even as wisely and well as they do if the newspapers were not permitted occasionally to express unbiassed opinions about them.

* * *

The British trade union delegates discovered another and even a more peculiar feature of the Russian Soviet system of government. They learned that Cabinet Ministers in Russia receive salaries of about £20 a month. Such stipends are very modest indeed; but it may be that the authorities who fixed the scale of remuneration knew what they were about and the statesmanlike qualities of the men who were likely to become Cabinet Ministers.

* * *

The report of the delegates is very interesting—and Russia must be a very interesting country to live in under a Soviet system of government. Still, we suspect that people who have developed a system of government such as the British people have developed, a system of government which admittedly has its defects, would soon become restive, if not actually rebellious, under a Soviet system of government. Britons have not advanced so far that they can look back and scoff at the sanctity of marriage and the sacredness of the home. They have a natural partiality for their children. That is a sentiment they share with the lower orders of creation. We know all this is utterly illogical and scientifically indefensible, proof positive that we are struggling away in the rear of the procession of human progress; but there it is, and for a generation or two longer we fear it will persist. We also prefer to have newspapers which are permitted to express their opinions, and to which we can write when we wish to express our opinions. In short, if institutions are not free, neither can the people who live under the institutions be free.

Canada's Story Day by Day

By BLODWEN DAVIES

FEBRUARY 28

"Oil out of flinty rock" mentioned in Deuteronomy is the modern petroleum, for oil was one of the earliest known minerals, the burning wells at Baku being objects of religious pilgrimage centuries ago. Today it is the most eagerly sought of natural resources, and Canada is realising the wealth which lies in her untapped oilfields in the North and West. On this day in 1860 oil was first struck in Petrolia, and for half a century the only known oil in Canada was that in Lambton County, Ontario. Oil in Lambton County was accidentally discovered by a man who was trying to manufacture naptha from the "gum-oil" which was collecting on the surface and destroying vegetation, much to the annoyance of the settlers. It is estimated that over a million barrels of oil flowed down the creeks and rivers, covering the surfaces several inches deep, before the wells were scientifically tapped and covered. Canada now has over three thousand producing wells.

Today, February 28 Is the Anniversary of:

Birth of Michel de Montaigne, the celebrated French essayist; Bordeaux, 1533.

Death of Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester; murdered at St. Albans, 1447.

Birth of George Buchanan, the famous Scottish historian and scholar; Killearn, Stirlingshire, 1506.

Death of Edward Moore, poet and dramatist, who wrote the play of "The Gamaster" for David Garrick; London, 1757.

Grant of first seigneury in Canada to Louis Hebert; 1626.

Relief of Ladysmith in the Boer War; 1900.

February 29 Anniversary

Behring Sea Arbitration Treaty; 1892.

Great Thoughts

I hold every man a debtor to his profession; from the which as men of course do seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves, by way of amends, to be a help and ornament thereunto.—Francis Bacon.

If we work upon marble it will perish. If we work upon brass time will efface it. If we rear temples they will crumble to dust. But if we work upon men's immortal minds, if we imbue them with high principles, with the just fear of God and love of their fellow man, we engrave on those tablets something which no time can efface, and which will brighten and brighten to all eternity. —Daniel Webster.

"WORDS"

You said it,
'Twas only a rumor perhaps that you heard,
But it sounded so funny, so really absurd,
That you couldn't help passing it on to a third;
And it grew, as words do, as it went on and on,
Till it parted two lives that were meant to be one,
Two lives are lived out in sorrow alone,
Their days grey and clouded, their happiness flown,
And you did it.

You said it,
A word of bright cheer on that wet Winter's day,
To all whom you knew as you went on your way;
Oh, but that's such a small thing, perhaps you will say,
But it grew, as words do, and went many a mile,
Bringing peace to the weary, making tired eyes smile,
To the sick and the sad it came like a song,
And brightened the hours which to them are so long,
And you did it.

You said it,
In anger and wrath at your poor erring child,
Whom love and compassion might have quite reconciled;
In your bitter reproof, your words drove him wild,
For they grew, as words do, in mad moments of haste,
And now you are lonely, your heart is laid waste,
In the heat of your anger you hastened his fall,
You would now give your life those words to recall,
But you did it.

You said it,
And those words that you said are gone from your power,
If they're good, they will prove a strength and a tower,
But if evil, their poison is spreading each hour,
For they grow, as words do, none can hinder their pace,
There will always be words to the end of the race,
Then help on the good words and leave out the bad,
You'll bring peace to the world, and joy to tha sad,
You can do it.

—Marian Thornborrow.

PRES. JACKSON TO UNDERGO REPAIRS

OVERHAUL AND REPAIR OF ENGINES TO COST $36,801

Has Already Had $220,000 Spent on Her in Reconditioning—Line Will Resume Former Schedule

A contract has been let to the H.R.L. Motor Company, of Seattle, to repair the President Jackson engines. The bid submitted by them was $36,801, and the work will be done in quick time so as to cause no delay in the departure of the Admiral Oriental liner for the Far East.

Before she began her last voyage, repairs, corrections and betterments to the President Jackson, costing $220,000 were made at the Naval Station, Puget Sound. This last repair job will complete her annual overhaul, which the other five liners had done all at once.

The next Admiral Oriental liner is not due from the Orient until March 17, this is the President McKinley, which will bring back the body of the late Captain Gibson and the returning delegates of the Pacific Northwest Commercial Delegation.

With the departure of the President Jackson for the Orient the Admiral Oriental line will resume its former schedule in time for the early Spring and Summer rush of tourists.

PORTLAND CANAL READY FOR YEAR OF ACTIVITY

"When I left Stewart there was an undercurrent of excitement in regard to the Indian. This property has had somewhat of a meteoric career, but of late has been one of the underdogs.

"Recently, however, number 3 tunnel was extended until it reached a total length of 1,281 feet. Diamond drills were then put into this tunnel and crosscutting was done at intervals throughout its entire length; 2,200 feet of hole were driven in thirty days.

New Vein Rich

"The management of the property refuses to talk for publication, but somebody spilled the beans and the people around Stewart believe the Indian has something that had not been disclosed in the previous workings but which the diamond drills have proven up.

"Official information given out by Mr. C. A. Banks, manager of the B. C. Silver property, that forty-five feet of ore has been cut by their diamond drills, showing an entirely new vein hitherto unheard of, places that property potentially in the same ranks as the famous Premier, which has paid close to $7,000,000 of dividends besides piling up an enormous reserve said to be over $12,000,000 and is today continuing to produce wealth of the same magnitude from not greater bodies of ore than that disclosed in the B. C. Silver.

Tungsten Adds Wealth

"Prospectors, the boys who are responsible for all the mines in the world in our district, are looking closer to home instead of hunting for green fields farther away, they are burning a little powder on their first discoveries close to salt water, knowing that $10 ore on the beach is worth more than $100 ore twenty-five miles from the beach."

Mr. Hull says that from information he has gained that Alice Arm district is due for a good year. The recent discovery in the Esperanza mine, thru the yellow looking spar that they have been throwing away was high-grade tungsten ore, has made some of the old-timers there sit up and think about where they saw that kind of stuff before.

Claims Restaked

"I heard in Stewart, and also in Prince Rupert, that claim owners who had let their properties lapse because silver and gold values were not high enough had lashed their snowshoes on and gone out to restake claims on which they claimed that they had dug this peculiar-looking tungsten ore without knowing what it was, until it had been analyzed from the products of the Esperanza mine.

"For four years Esperanza has been throwing this over the dump, and sorting and shipping their silver ore. Time may prove that the dump is more valuable than the shipments that have been made.

"Altogether we look for a year of big development."

Does your pen Qualify? Yes, it's a Waterman's

Any fountain pen's usefulness depends upon three things—the nib, the ink supply and the flow.

The nib must conform—the ink supply must be generous—the flow must be steady and continuous.

There is a Waterman's nib to suit every possible style of handwriting. The ink supply in every Waterman's is greater than that of any other pen of similar size. The "spoon" feed—exclusive to Waterman's—is the one method by which a steady flow of ink is assured.

It is because of these features—because of its ability to write properly at all times—that there are more Waterman's in use than all other makes of fountain pens combined.

Gold Tips

You do not have to get used to a Waterman's. You simply select the proper model to fit your hand and it works satisfactorily the instant it touches the paper.

In addition to buying the pen you buy a service such as Waterman's alone maintains. It is world-wide. It is thorough. It ensures satisfaction.

PETITION OPPOSES LAKE ROAD PROJECT

Messrs. Mellor and Brydone Show 254 Ratepayers Against Continuation of Work

Opposition to the request made to the Saanich Council at its last meeting urging continuation of work on Lake Road was voiced last night by a delegation of Ward Four ratepayers at the Council session at Royal Oak.

Messrs. Frank Mellor and Robert Brydone addressed the Council, asking it to refrain from expending any money this year on Lake Road. They presented a petition signed by two hundred and fifty-four bona fide ratepayers, who were opposed to further expenditures on the road at this time.

The two spokesmen advanced the suggestion that a committee of the Ward Four Ratepayers' Association arrange to meet members of the Saanich Council in the near future on Lake Road and consider the matter at that place. Members of the Council will visit Lake Road before the next Council meeting.

Cross-Fire Incident

Councillor Stubbs, of Ward Four, an advocate of continuation of work on Lake Road, took out a series of questions from his councillor drawer and proceeded to solicit answers to some from Mr. Frank Mellor, who opposed him in the councillor contest in Ward Four at the last municipal election in Saanich. This occasioned considerable cross-fire between Councillor Stubbs and Mr. Mellor.

At the last Council meeting Messrs. O. B. Ormond and George Rogers waited upon the Council and urged that the Lake Road work be continued. They also presented a petition signed by a large number of ratepayers, supporting the views they advanced.

Another petition in support of Lake Road work was received by the Council last night, as well as correspondence on the Lake Road question. These will all be dealt with by the Council when it considers the estimates at a forthcoming meeting.

SOMEWHERE

Somewhere behind the clouds, the star!
Somewhere, the silv'ry moon;
Somewhere the sunset glows afar,
Somewhere 'tis golden noon.
Somewhere the dewdrop glistening;
Somewhere, the sun-kissed sands,
Somewhere a sweet voice whispering
From out far foreign strands.

Somewhere a tiny seed is blown;
Somewhere the teardrops start.
Somewhere a gentle word is sown
Deep, deep within the heart.
Somewhere for thee, sweet melody
Is choiring through the night,
An aureate star, a blossoming tree,
A dawdrop wondrous bright.

Somewhere beyond, a silv'ry beam
Peeps from the cloud for thee;
E'en as it floods anew my dream,
And somewhere shines for me;
Somewhere behind the clouds, the star;
Somewhere, the silv'ry moon,
Somewhere the sunset glows afar;
Somewhere comes Joy—ah, soon!

Victoria, B.C., February, 1925.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist of February 28, 1875.)

The Disaster to the Los Angeles—The following in regard to the disaster to the Los Angeles was received last evening. Captain Howell reports that on the night of the 23rd she broke her shaft, and thus disabled she endeavored to make sail, but the position of the propeller made it impossible to steer the vessel and she was anchored in fifty fathoms. At daylight on the 24th they found themselves 15 miles from shore, with Tillamook Head in sight. Captain Howell called for volunteers to accompany him in the ship's boat to shore. Four men volunteered and at 6 o'clock a.m. they left the steamer; they reached shore late in the afternoon, and landed about twelve miles below Seaside House. All night they spent in climbing hills and wandering through the woods, reaching Clatsop Plains about noon, thence to Skipanon, whence the mail carrier took them to Astoria, arriving at 5 p.m. On the 26th the steam tug Astoria was chartered to tow the Los Angeles to Victoria. Weather thick and foggy, but no heavy wind blowing.

Exciting Runaway—Yesterday afternoon a span of horses attached to a farm wagon came thundering down Fort Street and struck a team belonging to Mr. Hool, of Lake District. Hool's team started off at a rapid pace along Government Street to C. Bossi's store, where they collided with his horse and wagon, upsetting both and themselves. All three of the vehicles were considerably damaged, but fortunately no one was hurt.

Nanaimo School—Mr. Joseph Plants will go to Nanaimo on Tuesday to take charge of the public school there. Mr. Plants is a teacher of experience and ability. He had won distinction as that in New Westminster and Victoria, and will, we feel confident, give satisfaction in his new field of duty.

Famous Ace Killed

BAYONNE, France, Feb. 27.—Roger Ronserail, known as "the Avenger of Pegoud," and a famous war ace himself, was killed yesterday during an exhibition flight at Mont de Marsan, near here. Since the armistice Ronserail had been employed by a circus to make flights over towns and cities, performing stunts and dropping handbills.

Smelting Company Make Reduced Lead Charges

TRAIL, B. C., Feb. 27.—The Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company of Canada announces a new lead treatment schedule for custom lead, which gives lead shippers about $1.25 per ton advantage over the existing schedule, which will be superseded March 1. Between sixty and seventy lead shippers are affected. Like the recent new zinc schedule, the new lead rates "give the shippers the benefit of improvements in operating conditions." The company expects to revise the schedule again after the increased plant capacity is put to use this Summer.

Seven Killed in Storm

BARREBOURO, France, Feb. 27.—Seven persons were killed and fifteen injured here yesterday when the workshop in which they were employed was crushed by a wall blown down by a high wind. It is feared there were still other victims, as several workers are missing.

ALTERS PLEA IN LETTER STEALING

MILITARY OFFICERS GIVE ACCUSED SPLENDID REPUTATION

Magistrate Reserves Judgment Until Today in Order to Fully Consider Situation

In the police court yesterday morning John Craigmyle, postman, of this city, altered his plea of not guilty to one of admission of his guilt in stealing letters from the mail and threw himself on the mercy of the police magistrate to deal leniently in the matter. A splendid reputation while overseas and later since the war was given him by officers under whom he served. The information was given that the accused was a married men with a wife and five children, and in the postal service drew $95 a month.

Magistrate Jay said that he did not wish to act hastily in the matter. He therefore remanded the case until this morning, when he will give his judgment.

The three charges that were laid against the accused were that he had opened letters addressed to the Continental Casualty Company, which contained $4.80; to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which contained $1; and to the Standard Furniture Company, which contained $7.50. Mr. P. R. Leighton, who appeared for him, asked to alter the plea to one of guilty and called evidence to show the character of the accused.

Colonel Lorne Ross, D. S. O., testified that the accused had served with him in the 67th Western Scots from 1915 to 1917, when he was transferred to another regiment. He testified to his being a first class man. He would go out of his way to do extra work in the regiment that he was not called upon to do. His duties called him constantly in the front line and he had never shirked his duty. He had served at Vimy and the Somme and elsewhere, and while he had not been wounded there was no doubt that the experiences he went through might have an effect upon him. When he made application for the position in the postal service he had had no hesitation in recommending him for the place.

Colonel H. M. Urquhart, D. S. O., M. C., A. D. C., had, as commanding officer of the 16th Canadian Scottish, had to do with the accused, who was a member of the pipe band of that regiment. In connection with the organizing of it there had been a lot of work entailed and the accused had worked with great energy in this. He thought a great deal of him and of his work and regarded him as a first class man.

Pipe Major W. J. Wishart, of the 16th Canadian Scottish Pipe Band, testified that he had served with the accused in France and later was associated with him here. He had found him at all times a good and faithful man.

Mr. E. M. Haynes, Postoffice Inspector, was called to testify as to the exact character of the offence. He said that five letters had been found on the accused. All of them with one exception had been opened. The letters were not registered. The accused had entered the service in 1920. He had gone on the permanent staff in June, 1921. His salary was $1,140, or $95 a month.

His Royal Highness Attends Welsh Festival and Sits Under St. Paul's Dome

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The Prince of Wales and about two thousand other persons, undeterred by alarmist warnings that the dome of St. Paul's was on the verge of collapse, attended a Welsh festival service in the Cathedral last evening.

The Prince, who apparently belongs to that large section of the public which accepts the assurance of the Cathedral experts that there is no danger in its present condition, sat immediately beneath the dome without showing alarm or once looking up to see if it was coming down. The rest of the congregation was evidently equally unconcerned.

Did Suicides in Remorse

SS. MONTLAURIER SAFELY FLOATED

STEERING GEAR BROKE AND VESSEL WENT ASHORE

Passengers to be Transferred to Montclare for Trip to Canada While Liner Undergoes Repairs

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Feb. 27.—The Canadian Pacific transatlantic liner Montlaurier, with 424 passengers on board, is safely at anchor tonight in Ringabella Bay, outside the western entrance to Queenstown harbor, after a somewhat alarming experience at noon last Monday, 230 miles west of Fastnet, when bound for St. John, N.B., when her steering gear was seriously damaged in a violent storm and had to be lashed from starboard to port.

The crew of the steamer, working continuously, succeeded in arranging an auxiliary gear, but it was necessary to put back to Queenstown. Reaching the entrance of Cork harbor, the auxiliary gear went askew and the ship took a bad list and grounded, just inside Roche's Point. The steamer remained fast two hours with the Canadian Pacific tug Morsecock trying to help her off and two tenders standing by to take off the passengers, if such a step should be required.

Meanwhile the anchors were dropped and the captain had the vessel sounded throughout. It proved to be perfectly tight. The Montlaurier's position at first looked dangerous, but after the winds abated and the tide came up again she was refloated and towed into the inner harbor.

The damage is understood to have been trivial, but repairs to her steering gear and rudder probably will necessitate her return to Liverpool.

The passengers tonight remained aboard the steamer, but tomorrow, together with 4,000 bags of mail, they will be transferred to the Montclare for the trip across the Atlantic. The mails for Canada, Newfoundland, China and Japan will be considerably delayed.

(Miss Brian, Center) "AFTER A SEVERE ILLNESS last winter due to overwork and faulty elimination, I began taking Fleischmann's Yeast. In two weeks' time marked improvement was noticed. Daily evacuations were established, and life took on a rosier hue. Steady improvement continued, and I feel that I owe much of my splendid physical condition now to Fleischmann's Yeast." (Miss Celia E. Brian, R. N., Brattleboro, Vt.)

"AFTER SIX MONTHS ON BROADWAY in 'Kid Boots' I was tired out; couldn't sleep well; every part of me just ached. I began to fear for my health. A friend suggested Fleischmann's Yeast. My doctor said 'Try it.' I did . . . Improvement was steady. Best of all, sleep was restored. Fleischmann's Yeast is part of my daily diet now—like milk." (Eddie Cantor, N. Y. City)

Do You Envy the Health of Others?

Read these remarkable statements of what one simple food can do

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy . . .

Eat two or three cakes a day before meals on crackers—in fruit juices or milk—or just plain. For constipation, especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) night and morning. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. 304, The Fleischmann Company, 1166 Burrard St., Vancouver, B. C., Canada.

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST IS MADE IN CANADA

THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—banishes constipation, skin troubles, stomach disorders.

(LEFT) "I AM AN EX-BRITISH NAVAL MAN and I have lived in Canada eighteen years. Soon after my arrival I commenced to suffer from indigestion. For days I only drank water or soup. Commenced taking your famous yeast cakes three daily. Result: No Indigestion—three square meals a day, splendid appetite, and feeling fit as a fiddle." (Reginald J. Seymour, Edmonton, Alberta)

"COMING FROM THE SCHOOLROOM in June, a tired-out teacher, I was given an opportunity to do some very interesting work for several months. I felt unable physically, but I plunged in. I began taking a cake of Fleischmann's Yeast daily, then three cakes. In two weeks' time I felt less tired; and now at the end of four months' hard work my tired-out feeling has vanished, my complexion looks as it did when I was sixteen, and my constipation, that arch enemy of indoor people, is a thing of the past." (Miss Caroline Barr, Chicago, Ill.)

"AS OWNER AND MANAGER OF A BEAUTY SALON, I come in daily contact with all manner of skin disorders. I unhesitatingly recommend Fleischmann's Yeast. About five years ago I was generally run down and unable to work. I was suffering from chronic constipation, indigestion, loss of vitality, and skin eruptions. I began taking Fleischmann's Yeast, three cakes a day. At the end of two months all skin eruptions had disappeared; and as if by magic I found all other troubles disappearing also. At the end of three months I was well and back at work." (Miss Katherine Fitzgibbon, Denver, Colo.)

Ship Western Cattle To Oriental Dealers

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—Official reports from the Orient to the Department of Trade and Commerce indicate that Canadian cattle are being successfully marketed in Japan.

For some months the Canadian trade commission in Japan has been co-operating with Western cattle raisers, the Federal Department of Agriculture and the various provincial departments, in an effort to open the Japanese market to shipments of Canadian cattle.

In this connection the Government of Alberta sent a special representative to Japan to report on the possibilities of increased shipments there.

His investigation substantiated the opinion of the Canadian trade commissioner that any extension of the tariffs would be impossible at the transportation rates existing, namely, $75 a head from Canadian ports to the Orient. The assistance of the Government merchant marine was sought, with the result that a $50 rate was inaugurated. On further discussion the rate quoted by the Government merchant marine and the Pacific lines was reduced to $37.50.

A successful marketing of cattle at this rate is reported and every effort is being made to interest the Western stock farmer in export to these ports.

One of four lots on which it is proposed to erect a new tubercular ward, the land in question was originally offered to the hospital for $1,000. It had formerly been listed at $1,500. As hospital property is exempt from taxation, the committee could not see its way clear to making a grant of the lot, as was requested by the hospital.

The man was represented by Mr. Stuart Henderson, while Deputy Attorney-General Carter appeared for the crown. The proper method of disposing of the previous order will be investigated in the meantime.

DECLARES BACHMAN SEIZURE IS ILLEGAL

COURT HOLDS SPEED BOAT'S USE "MERE ENTRAPMENT"

Boston Judge Refuses to Sanction Trick Put Up by U.S. Rum Chaser —Prize Crew Scored

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—Holding that the use of speed boats to make purchases of liquor from foreign vessels an hour's sail off the American coat is "mere entrapment," Federal Judge Morton today decided that the seizure of the British rum-runner Marjorie E. Bachman by the coast guard last October, was illegal. She was seized more than twenty-one miles off Gloucester October 24 last after a sea sled, capable of making forty miles an hour, went out to her, manned by Government officers. The rum-runner was seized by the coast-guard cutter Tampa the next day.

Provisions of Treaty

The treaty with Great Britain provides that a vessel flying its flag may be seized if she is found to be selling liquor within an hour's sailing.

A prize crew from the Tampa held her for two days before the Tampa brought her to this port. The crew of the Marjorie E. Bachman testified that when they returned to their vessel it was littered with empty bottles and cases of liquor that had been broken open.

Judge Morton in his opinion said the evidence satisfied him that "during the interval when the crew of the Bachman was away from their vessel there was gross misconduct on the part of the prize crew."

MR. R. H. B. KER

Publicity Bureau Names R. H. B. Ker As New Chairman

Mr. R. H. B. Ker has been selected as the chairman of the board of directors of the Victoria Publicity Bureau. This action was taken at a meeting of the directors newly appointed yesterday at noon. It was decided at the annual meeting held a few days ago that the course should be adopted this year of making selection of the board and then leave the matter of the choice of president for the year to the board itself.

Mr. Ker has taken a very deep interest in the affairs of the bureau. In this position he succeeds Mayor Pendray, who is retiring this year from the board except in an advisory capacity as mayor of the city.

SAANICH REDUCES ITS ASSESSMENT

LOWERS LAST YEAR'S FIGURES BY ABOUT $28,000

Largest Appeals Sustained Are B.C. Electric Railway and Messrs. Rowland and Tolmie

Saanich assessments have this year been reduced by approximately $28,000. This became known last night, when the Saanich Court of Revision, comprised of all members of the Saanich Council, with Reeve Macnicol in the chair, met last night at the Municipal Hall, Royal Oak, and completed the annual revision of the assessment roll. The 1924 assessment in Saanich was $8,500,000, and the assessment this year will be about $8,472,000.

The three largest reductions were made in appeals to the court by Mr. J. W. Rowland, the B.C. Electric Railway Company, and Mr. J. W. Tolmie. In regard to the appeal of Mr. Rowland, the court made a blanket reduction of ten per cent on his property, slicing the assessment of his lands from $115,000 to $103,500, a reduction of $11,500. Mr. Rowland's property consists of three hundred acres.

The B.C. Electric Railway owns 110.53 acres right-of-way in Saanich, and that is assessed at $27,630, or $250 per acre. Mr. A. D. King, counsel for the B.C. Electric, waited upon the court, and urged that the assessment per acre be lowered to $125, which he considered was a fair valuation. The court lowered the assessment twenty per cent, thus reducing the $27,630 figure to $22,104, a decrease in assessment by $5,526.

Mr. J. W. Tolmie secured a reduction in assessment on the old homestead property of $6,000, the land being reduced in assessment from $22,500 to $20,000.

MR. JAMES FORMAN IS NEW PRESIDENT

CANADIAN CLUB HAS OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK FOR YEAR

Victoria Organization Was Host to Many Distinguished Speakers During Twelfemonth

Mr. James Forman is the new president of the Victoria Canadian Club; His Honor Lieutenant-Governor W. C. Nichol is honorary president; Mr. Henry C. Hall, K.C., first vice-president, and Mr. F. B. Pemberton is second vice-president.

Mr. Fred McGregor is literary secretary and Mr. F. J. Sehl is secretary-treasurer.

Such was the decision of the members of the Victoria Canadian Club who attended the club's annual meeting held last night in the Empress Hotel.

The executive committee was chosen as follows: Mr. Joseph Patrick (past president), Messrs. Kenneth Ferguson, Major H. Cuthbert Holmes, M. W. Graham, John Cochrane, E. W. McMullin, Col. A. W. R. Wilby, and R. H. Swinerton.

While the meeting last night was not as largely attended as usual, it made up to a large extent for its deficiency by its enthusiasm and its hearty endorsation of measures which contained the breath of optimism and growth. While the remarks of the retiring president, Mr. Joseph Patrick, appeared a bit gloomy as to the past, his forecast of the future was exceedingly bright, and he urged the members on to show a real interest in the club and all those things for which Canadianism and the Canadian Club stood. He declared that the membership of the Victoria organization had shown a decrease instead of an increase during his term of office and he, in vigorous terms, deplored the fact. The Canadian Club, he said, stood for things Canadian, for Canadian ideals and Canadian integrity and future.

Several suggestions were made by members of the club in connection with "ginnering" up the organization. Mr. B. C. Nicholas advocating a membership campaign which would contain a large ingredient of the personal element. He believed that Victoria contained hundreds of good Canadians who would be glad and proud to join such an organization as the Canadian Club if they were "shown."

School Prizes Commended

Considerable discussion occurred relative to the past activities of the club, and unanimous commendation was given the practice of offering prizes to the scholars of Victoria public schools for the respective best compositions on Canadian history. The members present seemed to find some difficulty in discovering the proper person to whom bouquets should be cast for originating the idea, but there was no doubt as to the support each gave to its future practice. A motion to provide $50 to provide prizes for the 1925 competition was enthusiastically carried.

Officers of the club, including the principal executives, submitted reports for the past year, the annual report of the executive committee being perhaps the most important. It follows herewith:

"The executive committee begs to submit the following report of activities of the Victoria Canadian Club for the year ending Febraurary, 1925: Ten luncheons and supper meetings were held during the year and the following guests were entertained thereby: Dr. W. A. Riddell; Hon. Sir Hubert Brand and officers of the Light Cruiser Squadron, R. N.; Sir Henry Thornton, president Canadian National Railways; Major Maclaren, Royal Air Force; Sir William Ashley (luncheon jointly with Victoria Kiwanis Club); Messrs. A. F. Bement and E. P. Evans; Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner for Canada in London; Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, son of ex-Premier, of Great Britain, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald; Dr. Earl Page, of Australia; Admiral S. Hyakutake and officers of the Imperial Japanese Naval Squadron (luncheon jointly with the Women's Canadian Club).

Notables Invited

"Invitations were extended to the following, but owing to illness and other causes they were unable to attend the Canadian Club functions in Victoria: Hon. Mr. Hughes, ex-Premier of Australia; Mr. D. C. Coleman, vice-president Western lines, Canadian Pacific Railway Company; representatives of the Scottish Editors; His Excellency Baron Byng, Governor-General of Canada; Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada; Sir Campbell Stuart; Sir Littleton Groom; Sir John Martin Harvey; Mr. D. H. Ross, Canadian Trade Commissioner; Hon. M. E. Macdonald, Canadian Minister of Defence; Hon. Dr. King, of British Columbia, and Hon. Dr. Simon F. Tolmie, organizer for the federal Conservative party and Dominion member of parliament for Victoria constituency."

The report concluded with expressions of condolence to the families of the late Mr. J. B. H. Rickaby, one of the former charter members of the Victoria Club; Mr. T. W. Cornett, who was a member who took an intense interest in the work of the club; Mr. Daniel Smith and Mr. F. J. Stacpoole. Thanks were extended to The Victoria Daily Colonist and The Victoria Daily Times for assistance rendered in publicity work for the club; to Mr. George McCandless for auditing the accounts; to Mr. John Cochrane for useful assistance in the selling of lunch tickets; to the Chamber of Commerce for committee rooms, and to the management of the Empress Hotel for the care taken in caring for club functions.

Unidentified Robbers Riddled With Bullets

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—Two unidentified robbers were riddled with bullets here tonight when they attempted to hold up a residence district drug store in which four police detectives, forewarned of the hold-up plan, were concealed with waiting weapons. One was killed instantly; the other was taken to the receiving hospital, apparently dying.

Voluminous Evidence

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—Seven page boys of the House of Commons staggered up to the table of the House at the opening of the sittings this afternoon under the weight of several bulky packages containing the evidence taken by the royal grain inquiry commission. The bundles were heaped at the foot of the table, to the amusement of the House.

New Grain Act to Be Submitted This Session

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—A new grain act will be introduced by the Government at the present session of Parliament, based on some of the recommendations made in the recent report of the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission, of which Justice Turgeon, of the Supreme Court bench of Saskatchewan, was chairman. This was the statement made in the House this evening by Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, during the discussion of the vote to cover administration of the Canada Grain Act.

At the Playhouses

CAPITOL THEATRE Jack Duffy is one screen actor who thrives on other men's vanity. Screen actors wherever possible avoid old man roles, shunning the implication of senility. Like men in all other walks of life, moreover, they are loath to admit that the vigor and brightness of youth is thinning in their veins. Not so Duffy, however. Although only twenty-five years old he repeatedly plays old men parts. Decrepit, whened, toothless, palsied old men—the older they are the better he likes them. His latest is that of a toothless old office drudge supporting Doris Kenyon and an all-star cast in "If I Marry Again," which is showing at the Capitol Theatre this week. "If I Marry Again" is a story of great dramatic force. It was directed by John Francis Dillon under the supervision of Earl Hudson. Heading the cast are Doris Kenyon, Lloyd Hughes, Frank Mayo, Hobart Bosworth, Anna Q. Nilsson and Myrtle Stedman.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE That Thomas H. Ince and C. Gardner Sullivan are unbeatable as a combination is proven in "Hail the Woman," now showing at the Playhouse Theatre, which will be accepted as one of the really outstanding pictures of the year. Mr. Sullivan has long been recognized as a master writer of the photoplay. His gift of expression—his skill at making moving pictures from simple themes—pictures which make the spectator feel through their power of suggestion — these qualities are demonstrated again in this exposition of the wrongs inflicted upon woman by man. He has taken an old theme, but by embroidering it with human touches, dramatic sequences and situations that progress with compact unity—he has brought forth a document that is vital with life. Mr. Sullivan is too keen a dramatist to miss fire with his subject. Whatever he writes upon is always interesting.

COLUMBIA THEATRE "Roaring Rails," Harry Carey's latest feature, closes its run at the Columbia Theatre tonight. This is a thrilling tale of the railroads and a man's battle for a little war orphan whom he adopts. Frankie Darro, "the wonder child," portrays the orphan; Edith Roberts has the leading feminine role. The supporting cast also includes Wallace MacDonald, Frank Hagney, Charles Belcher and Duke R. Lee. "Roaring Rails" is from an original story by Hunt Stromberg and Doris Dorn. Tom Forman directed.

DOMINION THEATRE There is a right way and wrong way to pray to Allah. This was discovered by Raoul Walsh when he was directing Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad," which will be on view at the Dominion Theatre for the last time today. A mob of extras tricked out as Mohammedans were supposed to hear the muezzin's call to prayer and perform their devotions in the approved Moslem manner. First attempts were anything but satisfactory. An art director, seeing the confusion, stepped out from among the technical force and advanced his theories to Walsh. "I don't believe that's right," said Walsh. "Are there any Mohammedans here?" "Sure. Scads of 'em. There's old Hussein over there. Hey, Hussein! Come here!" "Showe me," says Walsh, "just how you pray!" "Mohammedan pray this way," says Hussein, doing a full knee bend, with his palms turned forward beside his face, then dropping to his knees and bending to the ground touching his palms and forehead to the pavement. He repeated this contortion and rose, smiling proudly. "Gosh!" exclaimed Walsh in an undertone to Edeson, the cameraman; then aloud he ordered, "All right, once more now—everybody Allah, and be sure you bite the dust!" Whereupon a large dusky extra playing the part of a slave yelled out, "Hey, Mistah Walsh—this ain't no dust! This am a concrete pavement!"

COLISEUM THEATRE "The Empress of Elemental Emotions." Of all the women in the films, Priscilla Dean is the one star to whom that epithet may be applied. In "The Siren of Seville," the H. H. Van Loan story now being shown at the Coliseum Theatre, every phase of Miss Dean's dynamic personality is displayed. As the Siren she is unlike any other vampire portrayed on the screen. She uses her femininity as any other woman to enmesh men, but there is nothing feminine about her wrath. She never strikes through her power to charm. She vents her fury in the hardier way of wielding a dagger or pitching in "man-to-man."

The Gaudalupe elephant seal sheds its cuticle as well as its hair.

Nerves Gave Little Rest

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Harrowsmith, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would take weak, fainting spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, day or night. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to publish this good medicine. I lend that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will serve to help others." — MRS. HARVEY MILLIGAN, R. R. No. 2, Harrowsmith, Ontario.

In a recent canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over 100,000 replies were received and 98 out of every 100 said they had been helped by its use. This medicine is for sale by all druggists.

NAZIMOVA IS STAR IN MADONNA OF THE STREETS AT CAPITOL

Forget the "Madame" and the "Alla" if you please. It is just plain Nazimova now.

Under this pared-down name, the great Russian actress is soon to appear at the Capitol Theatre in Edwin Carewe's latest First National release, "Madonna of the Streets," a tale of London's Limehouse. When asked about it, she said:

"It was the idea of my husband (Charles Bryant). He saw the wisdom in cutting it down to plain Nazimova. It is more catchy and seems to suggest more, something out of the ordinary. I like it."

But out of the United Studios, where the picture was produced, they either respectfully called her "Madame," or playfully saluted her with "Nazi," according to their social authority. Milton Sills, who plays opposite Nazimova in "Madonna of the Streets," called her "Mad-dam."

The London Theatre

Big Crowds at Old Vic—Dorothy Dix Is Competent—"Sometime" at Vaudeville—Charlot's Revue.

By E. MONTIZAMBERT

I went out a few days ago to the new "Q" Theatre, as the directors have rather neatly called their theatre at Kew, and found a charming hall, with no gallery, filled with the sort of audience that one sees at the Old Vic. Curiously enough it is in Outer London and not in London itself that Miss Kingston would find the public whose lack of enthusiastic attendance in the West End she deplores. There are seldom any empty seats at the Old Vic, or the Lyric, Hammersmith, or the Everyman at Hampstead, where, by the way, I hear M. Boris Ranevsky in a play called "Yvette" by Mr. C. V. Fernald, is adding to the reputation he made in the part of Orlieff in "Diplomacy."

If the "Q" continues on the lines it has mapped out there is no reason why it should not form another flourishing centre for the development of the drama, but it must be careful to pay as much attention as the above named theatres to the excellence of the acting, especially in the minor parts. The present play, produced by Milton Rosmer, is "The Fraud," by Leonard Merrick and Michael Morton.

Mary Fenton, a penniless doctor's daughter studying singing, is turned out of her boarding house for nonpayment of rent and asks help from a young man standing outside the Savoy. He takes her in, gives her tea, and has just committed the betise of making love to her when a family friend turns up who is bound to misunderstand and make mischief. The distracted young man, on the eve of a business trip to Paris, mumbles an introduction of the girl as his sister-in-law, and departs. The girl, equally distracted between dread of a night in the streets and horror of her misplaced confidence, lets herself be persuaded into paying a visit to these snobbish relations who have never been allowed to meet the young man's wife or sister.

After a week's visit, during which she contrives to fall in love with the Canadian farmer's son in the intervals of looking for work, the fraud is discovered, and after two dramatic scenes with all the members of this outraged suburban family, "Mary" prepares to go to the country overseas which has been described by the son quite impartially as both "penal servitude for the first year in a wilderness that turns your soul sick" and a land where after a short interval you can own, "a couple of horses and a cow and the Peace of God."

Dorothy Dix, as Mary Fenton, was such an irresistible competent actress that one lost sight of the improbability of some of the situations. Pretty starving girls who are also intelligent don't choose young men outside the Savoy to look after them, nor are they dressed in such remarkably pretty clothes after years of poverty even if one were meticulous enough to add that there is really no necessity for anyone to spend a night in the street with four or five columns of frantic appeals in every paper from people asking for service for which they are perfectly willing to pay, not to mention the ever-open door of St. Martin's crypt. Mr. Edmund Willard, as the farmer son, and Mr. Morten Selten, as the snobbish old father, oblivious to everything except his own interests, were very well suited in their parts, but the atmosphere of the suburban heroes of the film still hung about Mr. Gerald Aimes in the young man's part that was made too unattractive to give the girl any excuse for her appeal.

"Sometime," the new show at the Vaudeville, is a pleasant U. S. A. comedy with bright music and one good song, "The Tune You Can't Forget." Frank Tinney is as good as ever though a trifle longwinded like most American humorists. One of the best turns was T. Goodwin with Jack Frost in the boarding house scene practising their music hall turn with Frank Tinney at the piano. Among the cast, who gave a very good programme, were Desiree Ellinger, the Dollares Sisters and Startin.

Mr. Dion Titheradge is giving a series of four special matinees at His Majesty's this week, and beguiled by the courtesy in sending an invitation to these too brief entertainments, I went in to enjoy a varied programme that included some drinking songs sung in the setting of a wayside inn. The singing of H.M.S. Princess Catherine Yourievsky, a mimed Indian legend and some spirited sea chanteys.

The new version of "Charlot's Revue," produced at the Prince of Wales Theatre, is a tribute to the endurance of Laddie Cliff and Phyllis Monkman, who do almost all the work cut out for them largely by Mr. Ronald Jeans. The best thing in the programme is the tragic sketch by Dorotea Flatau called "Me Pink 'at," brilliantly acted by Miss Monkman, as Lili a limehouse slut; Henry Kendall, as Chung, her Chinese employer; and Peter Haddon, as a loathsome lascar.

Everyone was sorry to hear of Mr. Matheson Lang's illness which prevented his appearance in the revival of Carnival, but the illnesses of stars are the opportunities of understudies and Mr. Henry Hewitt made such a good use of his chance that he will surely be promoted to playing leading parts. Mary Glynne played Somonetta charmingly to his Silvio and the rest of the cast were as admirable as usual.

Wife (to husband who has just started to purchase house through a building society): "Oh, darling—isn't it lovely to think that when we're seventy-five this will be our very own house for the rest of our lives?"

—The Passing Show.

CANADIAN FINE ART SHOW AT WEMBLEY

OTTAWA MAKES PREPARATIONS FOR ADDITIONS

Works Intended for British Empire Exhibition to Be Received Up to March 7

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—It is announced that the Dominion Government has made all preparations for a new fine arts section at the British Empire Exhibition this year. Works of art intended for the exhibition will be received at the National Gallery up to March 7.

Word has been received here of the purchase for the Leicester public art gallery of F. N. Loveroff's picture, "Snow on the Hillside." This was one of the pictures in the Canadian section of the Wembley Exhibition last year, and is the sixth purchased from the Canadian section.

Canadian Section

The Canadian section, on the close of the British Empire Exhibition last year, was specially invited to tour some of the most important of the provincial cities of Great Britain. The tour began at Leicester and then went to Glasgow, and is now at Birmingham. Other important British galleries will be visited.

An announcement from the National Art Gallery states that at the time of the purchase of A. Y. Jackson's picture, "Halifax Harbor," for the British national collection at the Tate Gallery, the trustees of that institution specially desired it to be known in Canada how deeply they appreciated the modern department of Canadian paintings, and that lack of funds alone prevented further purchases on behalf of the National Gallery of British Art.

"Duncan Nightingales" Give Successful Concert

DUNCAN, Feb. 28.—A splendid programme of music was rendered under the direction of Mrs. R. King, by her pupils, now well known as the "Duncan Nightingales," in St. John's Hall on Tuesday evening. A large and appreciative audience was present. The programme included Highland dancing by Master Charlie Graham-Brown; duet, "Warble, Little Birds," by Margaret Berry and Fred Waller; song, "Pretty Birdie," with "The Peacock" for encore, little Kathleen Elliott; monologue, "Suppose," Jean Currie; "The Spring Maid," Janet Wallace; "Hurdy-Gurdy," Douglas Firth; chorus, the "Nightingales"; mixed quartette, "Swinging," Kathleen and Elsie Elliott, Douglas Firth and Walter Currie; song, "Flowers," Elsie Elliott, song, "In the Meadow," Gladys Stock; male quartette, "When the Sun Sets," Fred Waller, Douglas Firth, Hector Currie and James Page; song, "A Brown Owl," Margaret Berry; song, "Buttercup, I Love You," Violet Page; song and trio, "The Seasons," Hector Currie, Janet Wallace, Gladys Stock and Violet Page; song, "Off to France," James Page; quartette, "The Water Mill," Douglas Firth, Jean Currie, Elsie Elliott and Hector Currie; song, "My Heart Will Ever Stay With You," Fred Waller, and quartette, "Good Night," by four "Nightingales."

Mrs. King accompanied throughout. Following the programme supper was served in charge of Mrs. J. G. Christman, Mrs. R. C. Macgregor, Mrs. J. L. Bird and Mrs. E. Stock. Dancing followed, the music being supplied by Mrs. King and Mr. H. Robinson.

CANNONBALL BAKER IS IN OAKALLA JAIL

ALLEGED HIJACKER ARRIVES FROM NEW YORK

Harry F. Sowash Now on Way From New Orleans, Expected to Reach Penitentiary on Monday

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27.—Lodged in Oakalla jail, William B. (Cannonball) Baker is awaiting trial for the alleged participation in the hijacking and slaying of Captain W. J. Gillis and his son in the motor boat Beryl G., last September. Baker was brought to Vancouver early Friday morning by Provincial police officers from New York, and the arrival of Harry F. Sowash, alleged accomplice, who is being brought from New Orleans, is expected before Monday morning. The two men will be given preliminary hearing in Victoria, where their trial will probably also be held. The police escort who brought Baker across the continent report a quiet journey, devoid of trouble or excitement, from the Atlantic coast. The accused man was calm and smiling when handed over to the warden at the prison farm in Burnaby.

Bereaved Man Suicides

WINNIPEG, Feb. 27.—George T. Pankhurst, seventy, whose wife died last Monday, committed suicide at his home here today by hanging.

Aged Couple Refuse to Vacate Burning Home

MONTREAL, Feb. 27.—Because it had been their home for so many years, Thomas Corbiel, aged eighty-six, and his wife, aged eighty-four, refused to leave the house on St. Jerome Street, in which they lived, when it caught fire last night, and it was not until firemen had forcibly led them out that the aged couple left the burning structure. Mrs. Corbiel protested loudly when she was taken by the arm, while it required the combined efforts of three firemen and his son to eject the aged man.

Save-the-Forest Week

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—From Sunday, April 19, to Saturday, April 25, of this year, has been set aside by royal proclamation as "Save-the-Forest" week. The proclamation appears in this week's issue of The Canada Gazette.

"I Suffered Terribly With Sore, Aching Back"

Mrs. Roland Ferguson, 194 Lake St., Peterboro, Ont., writes:

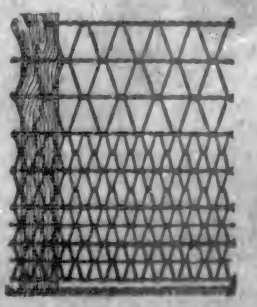

"For over two years I suffered terribly with sore back. I was almost mad with the pain, and had doctored with it until I was discouraged. Then my father, who is a firm believer in Dr. Chase's Medicines, advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I followed his advice, and am glad to say I was completely relieved of that torturing pain in my back. It is over a year since I used these pills, and I have had no return of the trouble, but always keep them in the house."

TEACHER EXPLAINS HOW BLIND READ

Women's Union, First Baptist Church, Hear Very Interesting Speaker

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Union of the First Baptist Church was held in the schoolroom on Tuesday at 3 o'clock. Miss Fame, who formerly was a teacher in a school for the blind, in addressing the meeting on "How the Blind Read," related many amusing and interesting stories relative to the work and of many little sketches in the life of these pupils, also reading little paragraphs from letters she had recently received.

One of the most interesting of these, taken from a letter written recently by a former pupil, who had achieved wonderful success, both in Canadian and English universities, and who is now a professor in one of these institutions for the blind. He thanked God for Miss Fame's life and the wonderful power she had over the pupils.

Rev. Mr. Dimmick gave a very interesting and instructive address on the home circle, pointing out that no picture was more beautiful than that where the parents held supreme power in the home.

A letter was received from the Local Council of Women concerning their tag day, and Mrs. Bradshaw was asked to represent the First Baptist Church.

COLLEGE DANCE IS DELIGHTFUL EVENT

Fifth Annual Affair Is Tremendous Success—Dumbells Company Join Revelries of Faculty and Students

Victoria College balls have become among the most-looked-forward-to events in the younger set's social season, and the fifth annual dance last evening at Alexandra ballroom more than lived up to the reputation made by its enjoyable predecessors. Everything was delightfully done, from the music to the decorations and the supper, and even the older people who graced the gathering by their presence caught the youthful holiday spirit and joined the throng of dancers on the ballroom floor long before the evening was over.

The college colors, blue and gold, dominated in the scheme of decorations both in the ballroom and supper-room. Rosettes and garlands of these colors reproduced the Adams' style of decoration in the ballroom, while over the ivy-framed mirror at the north end of the ballroom was the college crest, with its three black ravens on a field of gold. The banisters and balcony were woven with cedar and ivy and hung with garlands of gold and blue. Even the great chandeliers held amber-tinted lights, and enormous gold chrysanthemums mingled with the greenery. Osard's orchestra, which included all the most popular up-to-date music in its programme, was ensconsed behind a screen of palms and greenery.

A feature of the novel lighting effects operated by Mr. Young was the insertion of the kaleidoscopic wheel of pictures of Victoria College staff, the appearance of the first, that of Dr. E. B. Paul, the popular principal, being greeted with wild enthusiasm by the students. There followed Madame Sanderson, Professor Russell, Miss Cann and Professor Elliott.

Another especially popular incident was the arrival of several members of the Dumbells Company, who joined the party about midnight and remained until the dance was over, participating in and adding to the jollity of the occasion.

The supper-room was very prettily arranged with runners of blue and gold and vases of daffodils on the tables, and gold crepe shades on the electrollers. The catering was excellently managed by the Alexandra House company.

Among those present, in addition to the student body of the College, were Dr. Paul, the principal; Professor and Mrs. Elliott, Madame Sanderson, Miss Cann, Miss Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Willis, Judge and Mrs. Lampman, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. McGregor, Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Brown, Mrs. Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Mr. Jos. Jones, Mr. Stanelend, Mr. and Mrs. Aldous, Mme. Valda, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. B. C. Nicholas, Mr. Charles Newcombe, Messrs. Douglas Hunter, Jack Adams and R. Wootton, and others.

TINY TOTS GIVING UMBRELLA DRILL

Young People's Department of Salvation Army Giving Programme Monday

The Young People's Department of the Salvation Army in Victoria is becoming a "live wire" in the community. In connection with their annual distribution of prizes for Sunday school attendance, they will give a demonstration on Monday, March 2, at 7:45 p.m.

Some of the special features of the programme will be given by girls, and give promise of excellent items. The "tiny tots'" umbrella drill will be of delightful interest to all present. Twelve girls will give a Maple Leaf drill, one-half carrying large colored maple leaves and the others Union Jacks.

Although the young ladies are to be mostly to the front, the boys are not left out, and among items of interest will be the "Mutt and Jeff" duet; also the donkey drill.

The climax to the programme will be a short cantata, entitled "The Beautiful City." Eighteen persons taking part.

The Etiquette of the Guest

Frankness in Friendship

By JULIA HOYT

(Copyright, 1925, in United States and Canada by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

To speak a little further on the subject of my last article, naturally a girl likes to feel that a man who is attentive to her wants to give her the best within his capacity. In the same way, the man who really cares about a girl will take pleasure in even denying himself something in order to give her a luxury that he feels she deserves or a luxury that it gives him pleasure to see her enjoy.

Tact comes into the question of the expenditure of money as much as it does into any question in life. A girl can be irritatingly insistent on doing things modestly, and this is just as much a mistake as is insisting on doing things luxuriously. The first is, of course, a mistake inspired by kindliness and a desire to be considerate, whereas the second is purely a selfish and petty one; consequently, the second is the worst mistake of the two. But we often hurt a friend by refusing to accept a sacrifice. Though we should, if the friendship continues, find a tactful way to refuse a continuance of such sacrifices, we should not always deny the pleasure that the sacrifice gives to the one who makes it.

In addition, when considering the finances of the man with whom we are going out, we should be very careful not to appear priggish or patronising in our attitude. It seems to me that many girls are blamed for the expenses men are put to in taking them out when, as a matter of fact, it is not their fault at all. I cannot put it too strongly that honesty and frankness with regard to finances, as well as anything else, is a most important factor in starting a friendship, and this is very much up to the man. Many girls are perhaps thoughtless without in any way meaning to be unkind—in fact, they might be very much upset if they knew that they were being entertained in a way that was making things very difficult for their friend. Consequently, a man must have the courage at the start to realize that friendship does not depend upon splurge and luxuries, and he should quite frankly make the girl understand how they must do things if they are to do them together.

Many unhappy marriages have been caused by false pride. I have known of men who have entertained in a way far beyond their means girls whom they wanted to marry, and who have told them of their true financial status only after they have become engaged or married. If I were that girl, it would not be the fact that the man was poor that would make me unhappy, but it would unquestionably be a great blow to me to learn that he had such a small opinion of me as to deceive me all those weeks or months, or to think that money could play such an important part in my feeling for him. In addition, how stupid the man is, for if money could influence the girl in her decision with regard to accepting or refusing him, how can he think that he is going to gain happiness by telling her the truth after they are married?

False pride with regard to finances leads to many evils, some of them really serious. The girl who knows that a man is in love with her and demands things that she knows he cannot afford, may be doing a greater wrong than merely making the man temporarily hard up or uncomfortable. It is human nature to like to do things in the best way; it is also human nature to want to give the person for whom we care the best there is to be given, but certainly in the relationship between two real people the conditions under which they are together should be of secondary importance.

A Girl Can Be Annoyingly Insistent on Doing Things Cheaply

Germany Is Absolutely Helpless, Says Professor

MONTREAL, Feb. 27.—"There is no danger to Europe from a revived German army, though, in some respects, the Treaty of Versailles has not been carried out by Germany. She is in reality absolutely helpless. She has no heavy artillery, nor air fleet which could possibly compete with those of her neighbors, and she lies absolutely at the power of the Allies." This is the declaration of Prof. C. K. Webster, professor of international politics at the University of Wales. Prof. Webster was one of the secretaries at the peace conference at Versailles.

Royalty Seeks Seclusion In the Home of Princess

Prince George and Prince Henry Are Both Seeking Rest at Their Sister's Mansion in Yorkshire—Little George Hubert Lascelles, Aged Two, Gets Pony for Birthday—Locomotive Is Motif for New Operatic Hit

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Princess Mary's quiet Yorkshire home at Goldsborough is a veritable godsend to others of the Royal Family who want to escape from publicity for a few days. It is more difficult to gain admittance to the grounds of the hall than anywhere else in England, and the servants are exemplary models of stony reticence.

Prince George—whose little dinners and dances with Miss Poppy Baring recently led him into those chatty columns of the newspapers—has been down to Goldsborough for a while, to let the rumors die down; so has Prince Henry, but not a soul has known about it. The only one who is conspicuously absent from the Lascelles menage is the Prince of Wales.

Master George Hubert Lascelles is two this month, and his mother is giving him a Shetland pony for his birthday present. It seems a reckless present for such a youthful rider, but his mother was riding when she was three.

Margot Asquith, Countess of Oxford—that, I suppose, is what people will call her—but title or no title, she will still be just Mrs. Asquith. At any rate, she will still write as Margot Asquith.

It is no secret that pecuniary difficulties have been a factor in her husband's long refusal of an earldom. The Asquiths are not rich—not even comfortably off as things are now—but there are rumors of another book from Margot's pen before long. She is about the only women in London who never wears jewels, but she is quite striking enough to dispense with them.

The serious music world of London has been badly jazzed up the last week or two. Following the two recent incursions of the Savoy dance orchestra from the Savoy ballroom into Queen's Hall, London, temple of classical music (an event that puzzled the critics quite a lot), there comes another surprise.

The sedate Philharmonic Orchestra has played a new composition by Arthur Monegger, the French modernist, called "Pacific 231," which is dedicated to a Canadian locomotive. It is a striking piece of modernism, strenuous and exciting. It is supposed to make you feel you are being hurled through the night at seventy miles an hour in an express train.

Already legends have gathered round the piece. Whilst the poor Philharmonic was rehearsing it a man is said to have exclaimed, "Tickets, please"; and a woman in the audience after the first performance said, "I feel as if my eyes were full of cinders."

Ex-Kaiser on Jewelry Expedition

Here is a bit of news from Holland. The ex-Kaiser and his wife have been recently to inspect the German crown jewels, which remain intact and have reposed in a Dutch bank since the war. William's second wife is very anxious to wear these marvelous jewels as Empress. She is quite fed up with the dullness of the little flat country of canals, and the expedition to admire the jewels was undertaken to mollify her. Not very much satisfaction in that, one would imagine, for, of course, William has not any authority to remove them.

The Dean of Manchester, one of England's most prominent ecclesiastics, has just been denouncing Miss 1925's habit of powdering her nose—not a new question, but one always sure of raising the dust. But the Dean cannot possibly know of a convenient little dressing-room in the fashionable Church of St. Columbus, London, where the bride can retire to powder her nose and arrange her veil before going up the aisle. Every bride makes use of it, and Miss Octavia Lebourdy, of Ottawa, who married Captain H. S. Brown, of the Grenadier Guards, last Tuesday, was no exception. Miss Lebourdy, by the way, was a "green" bride, and even her ornaments were of jade. Prince Henry, who at one time was a fellow officer of the bridegroom, went to the reception afterwards at the Berkeley.

Something Like an Eclipse

London lost the sun last Saturday for an hour or two, but it also found a new cocktail to make up for it. Herry Craddock, of the Savoy, who has devoted his life to studying eclipses of another kind, spent the darkest hour in trying to find something to celebrate the sun's effort. The result, "Total Eclipse," is beautiful to look upon, and, unlike eclipses in the firmament, which are apt to be half-hearted affairs, is of the hundred per cent variety. Its color is a cross between an angry sky and the color of melting rubies, and a black olive gleams significantly in the centre of it. Since then Harry has not been able to make "Total Eclipses" quickly enough.

YOUNG PEOPLE WILL HEAR A NEW SERIES OF CHRISTIANITY TALKS

A series of Sunday afternoon meetings for young people, to consist of an address followed by discussion, will be held in the Guild Hall of the Memorial Hall, commencing next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The programme of subjects and speakers is as follows: March 1, "What Is the Christian View of God, and His Purpose for the World?", Very Rev. Dean Quainton; March 8, "Home and Social Problems of Young People Today," Miss Lilian K. Brown; March 15, "What Has Christianity to do With Business?", Mr. Bruce Brodin; March 22, "What Does Social Service Offer to Young People?", Miss O. Snyder; March 29, "Christianity, War, and World-Peace," Mr. C. Eden Quainton; April 5, "What Does Christianity Ask of the Individual?", Mr. A. R. Merrix.

The programme has been arranged by a committee of young people of Christ Church Cathedral, and the meetings are open to all young men and young women who wish to attend.

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVES

The usual weekly social held at the Conservative rooms, Campbell Building, by the Women's Progressive Conservative Club proved a huge success, thirty-eight tables being in play. The winners were: First table, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Robertson, Mr. Peters and Mr. Mellen; second, Mrs. Heaneki, Mrs. Wescott, Mr. Jones and Mr. Milton; third, Mrs. J. M. Grant, Mrs. Peters, Mrs. Merriman and Mr. Frost; fourth, Mrs. Carson, Mrs. Morley, Mr. Currie and Mr. Keiman. Mrs. Cuthbertson and Mr. Nason won the ten bids.

After the game ice cream was served and a large crowd arrived and joined in the dancing. Mrs. C. Baugh-Allen, owing to indisposition, was unable to be there, but Mr. Baugh-Allen led the lancers, which was greatly enjoyed. Findler's orchestra supplied some excellent music.

On Monday next there will be another military 500 and dance in the same rooms, when good prizes will be given. Mrs. C. Baugh-Allen and partner will demonstrate the latest waltzes and fox trots, and Mr. Rutley and Mr. Baugh-Allen will lead the lancers and waltz cotillon. Cards start at 8:30. The members extend a hearty welcome to strangers in the city.

WEDDINGS

York-Hawe

Under an arch of trailing smilax, centred with a large white wedding bell, the wedding of Miss Elsie Hawe and Mr. Kenneth Cecil York took place on Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hawe, Collingwood Street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. E. Mitchell, and the bridal music rendered by Mrs. Alex. Meston.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in ivory French brocaded crepe, caught upon one side with a cluster of orange blossoms, a dainty cascade hanging from the shoulder on the other side. Her white Brussels net veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms, finished with small clusters at both sides. She carried freesias and Ophelia roses. Miss Eoined Monning, as bridesmaid, wore a gown of peach Canton crepe in longwaisted fashion, while Mrs. E. B. Mayon, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, wore blue brocaded satin, with trimming of accordion pleating. Both attendants wore rhinestone hair bands and carried delicate old-fashioned bouquets of pink and white shaded tulips and white freesias. The bride's brother, Mr. Fred Hawe, supported the groom. During the signing of the register Mrs. Reginald Band gave a vocal solo.

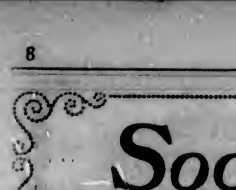

Following the ceremony a reception was held, and the tea table, centred with a wedding cake, was decorated with pink roses and freesias. Presiding at the urns were Mrs. C. S. Williamson and Mrs. R. C. Macquerie. Serving the guests were Miss Marguerite Baxter, Mrs. Marshall Bolduc, Miss Mabel White, Miss Evelyn Marsh, Miss Myrtle Klevell and Miss Katherine Pratt; while Mrs. C. E. Elliott had charge of the tea arrangements and Mrs. Alex. Meston cut the ices. Mrs. Hawe, mother of the bride, wore black beaded crepe.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. York left for Portland by motor, and on their return will reside in Victoria. The bride travelled in an ensemble costume of blue and fawn, with hat of similar tones.

DEPUTY SPEAKER VISITS CAPITAL

PRINCE GEORGE MEMBER GETS AWAY FROM "ICY BLASTS"

Claims Great Future for Northland So Soon as People Awake to Possibilities

Mr. Harry Perry, Deputy Speaker of the British Columbia Legislature, arrived in the Capital City yesterday and is a visitor for a few days at the Empress Hotel. As always, Mr. Perry, metaphorically speaking, "is filled with the north." Northern British Columbia, he says, is the treasure chest of Canada. It holds the best timber, the best mineral resources, the best fisheries, of any region of the Dominion, and the one ingredient needed is man-power.

"If we of the north could only get the people down here to thoroughly realize and appreciate the possibilities and wealth our north-country holds, there would be a stampede to our district," he said. "You people of Victoria have got into the way of thinking that a bit of cold weather, ice and snow, is a terrible thing. I don't understand your viewpoint. Most of you came from Ontario or some other Eastern Canadian provinces, and you seem to have forgotten the cold, miserable weather you used to experience back there. Take a trip to Prince George in the Winter-time and we'll show you a real climate. We don't grow pink roses, but we raise good men and women who swear by the Northern British Columbia Winter and its icy blasts."

Mr. Perry is in the city on a mid-session trip of personal business, politics and pleasure. He is glad to be in the Capital City, he said yesterday, in spite of all his enthusiasm for the "icy blasts" of his home town in the north. He was the recipient of many well-wishes from Victoria friends yesterday.

BLIZZARD HITS EASTERN CITIES

at an end and within twelve hours the mercury had fallen 22 degrees.

This sudden drop in the temperature was accompanied by a fifty-mile-an-hour gale, which swept through the streets with such force that many persons were blown off their feet.

Today the thermometer registered a few points below zero, but the wind, displaying few signs of abatement, made the cold more intense. There was a slight snowfall during the night.

Seventy-Mile Gale in Ontario

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—Northwesterly winds, which yesterday attained a velocity in some places of almost seventy miles an hour, were moderating throughout Central and Western Ontario this morning, citizens welcoming the relief from the raw blasts which made temperatures well above zero seem almost unbearable.

Throughout the greater part of the province today the weather is fair and cold, with higher temperatures promised for the week-end.

Despite the intensity of the gale, which in many places became a blizzard as snow fell heavily, no fatalities were reported this morning, but a number of fires were reported and in some cases families were forced to leave their homes clad in night attire.

In Northern Ontario

NORTH BAY, Feb. 27.—One of the severest storms of the Winter is raging over Northern Ontario, it being the third day of the storm in some parts. High winds drifted the snow badly, interfering with railway traffic.

Blizzard at Peterboro

PETERBORO, Feb. 27. — Last night's blizzard was the worst in forty years. The mercury stood at 8 below with a sixty-five-mile gale blowing.

Damage in New England

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—Winter, which has been lurking in the guise of spring for weeks, suddenly sprang upon New England yesterday and at noon today rain, snow and fog accompanied by wind, which rose to the strength of a gale, caused the mercury to fall rapidly. Three persons were killed, due directly or indirectly to the storm, and fires in many localities were fanned to dangerous proportions by the gale.

A freak of the storm was a lightning bolt which destroyed a barn in Bowdoinham, Maine. Another fire did $160,000 damage in Portland.

Fifty of Labor Party Killed in Riot in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 27.—Dispatches from Puebla today state that fifty members of the Labor Party were killed by agrarians during the election riots last Sunday in the district of Michaca, state of Tlaxcala, instead of three as at first reported to the Department of the Interior. No confirmation has been received from official sources that the toll of dead reached such proportions.

HOUSE AGREES TO $32,000 FOR CABLE TRANSMISSION

Commons Informed That Ten Thousand Words Per Month Are Sent Out

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—A vote in the estimates of the Department of Trade and Commerce for $32,000, covering British and foreign news service, brought forth some discussion in the House of Commons this afternoon. Sir Henry Drayton, Conservative, inquired as to the terms of the contract with Reuter's News Service.

Mr. Low explained that by the contracts ten thousand words per month were carried by cable.

Use Made of Cables

Sir Henry Drayton said it was publication that was of interest to the House and he wanted to know to what extent the cables were being published. Mr. Low said that 12,700 clippings had been taken from British papers of the news carried by the cable service.

A. Spedkmen, Progressive, Red Deer, pointed out that a phrase of the contract said it was to promote the best interests of Canada. Who exercised the supervision?

Robert Forke, Progressive leader, pointed out it would make a difference if Government statement were published without the other side of the case being presented.

Mr. Low said the news was taken from all sources. The vote carried.

Daniel Kelly, Pioneer Railroader of Province, Dies at Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27.—Another of the few remaining pioneers of railway construction in British Columbia passed away in the person of Daniel Kelly, eighty-three, Mr. Kelly, with his wife, who survives him, came to this Province with the first band of construction workers under charge of the late Mr. Harry Abbott, first C.P.R. superintendent in British Columbia. They traveled by rail to San Francisco and took the boat to Port Moody, where they landed, afterwards crossing the mainland to North Bend.

For nearly forty years Mr. Kelly was foreman of construction on the C.P.R. lines between Vancouver and Kamloops. He had charge of laying the steel for the Western line and was present at the memorable junction of the Eastern and Western lines at Craigie Lachie, when in November, 1885, the last spike, was driven by Sir Donald A. Smith, afterwards Lord Strathcona. Mr. Kelly retired from the C.P.R. service about fifteen years ago and came to Vancouver to live. He was a native of Prince Edward Island.

COURT HAS SUGGESTION IN BREACH OF PROMISE CASE

Suit Against Stewart Mine Owner Terminates at Vancouver—Judgment Reserved

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27.—"This matter has not gone beyond remedy—there must still be hope that an arrangement can be reached," suggested Mr. Justice Morrison at the conclusion Friday of the suit for damages for breach of promise of marriage brought by Miss Lottie Maud Munn, of London, England, against John J. Haahti, Finlander, and mine owner and manager, of Stewart, B.C. The trial lasted all day, and brought out an entrancing story of an English "picture bride," who traveled from London to Stewart to marry a stranger with whom she had corresponded.

"Barkus Is Willing"

"Would you now marry the plaintiff?" asked His Lordship, turning to the defendant, who was in the witness box.

"Yes, I would," replied the defendant quickly.

"What does your client say?" His Lordship asked J. A. Campbell, counsel for Miss Munn. A brief consultation followed.

"This is not a matter my client wishes to answer," replied the lawyer.

"Very well," replied the court, "but I trust that an understanding will be reached before long, and I see no barrier to the conclusion of the arrangement which was started when the plaintiff left for the Coast to meet the defendant at Stewart."

Judgment was reserved.

SAANICH POLICE ESTIMATES RISE

Council Approves 1925 Figures—Purchase Motorcycle—Discuss Lime Kiln Road Project

The Saanich Council last night passed the estimates of the Police Commission for the present year, which are $545 in excess of last year's figure. The 1925 estimates authorize the expenditure of $10,955, while the 1924 estimates totaled $10,410.

The Council approved the recommendation of the Police Commission, and will purchase from R. Shanks a Harley-Davidson motorcycle and sidecar at a cost of $690.05, including turn in of the present Indian motorcycle in use. A new Harley-Davidson machine was requested by the Commission in view of the fact that the other cycle owned was a Harley-Davidson, and the Commission is anxious to standardize equipment.

The purchase of this motorcycle is the reason for the increase in the Saanich police estimates this year over 1924.

Municipal Clerk Sewell was instructed to submit a detailed report at the next meeting of the running expenses of the chief of police car and the motor cycles.

The Council last night discussed the Lime Kiln Road question, and heard the proposal that had been advanced that the City of Victoria contribute $2,000, the Provincial Government $4,000 and Saanich $2,000 to making improvements to this road, which leads to Butchart's Gardens. Several of the councillors thought that it would be good business for Saanich to get this work done, if they only had to contribute $2,000 while outside concerns paid $4,000, and thus employ a number of Saanich workmen on the project. Decision in the matter was deferred until next Friday's meeting.

He was born in Montreal in 1878, the son of Norman W. Trenholme, Justice of the court of King's Bench.

Start Work on Alouette Dam

MAPLE RIDGE, B.C., Feb. 26.—Work has been started on the site of the big Alouette Lake dam and the B.C.E.R. Company's contractors, the Pacific Construction Company, has about 150 men employed in the vicinity. The dam will be erected about one-eighth of a mile below the lake in the river, and it will raise the lake level about 40 feet.

COUNCIL REFUSES RECONSIDERATION

QUESTION OF LEGALITY ENTERS SCHOOL ESTIMATES ISSUE

Council Divides in Opinion—Board May Appeal to People—Trustees to Discuss Situation

The Saanich Council last night, by a 6-2 vote, refused to reconsider the school estimates and entertain the recent proposal of the Saanich School Board that it would slash its ordinary school expenditure estimates by $3,700 on condition that the Council would approve the two extraordinary expense items of $5,000 and $250 for the purchase of grounds respectively for Cloverdale and Tillicum schools.

School Trustees Hobbs, Thorpe, Holland and Mrs. Campion waited upon the Council and were prepared to place their proposition before that body, but the question of the legality of the Council reconsidering the school estimates, which the Council had passed at its last meeting, arose, and the Board's conditional offer did not come before the meeting.

The Saanich Council, at its last meeting, passed the School Board's estimate for ordinary expenditure and the $1,500 item of extraordinary expense for six furnaces for various Saanich schools. The Council rejected the other two items, totalling $5,250. The Reeve doubted whether the Council could legally open up the School Board ordinary estimates for reconsideration. Councillors Kirkham and Stubbs supported the motion to reconsider the estimates, those opposed being Reeve Macnicol, Councillors Graham, Vantreight, Oldfield, Hagen and Murphy.

Reeve Macnicol said that there was no provision in the Act for the Council to reconsider the school estimates after having passed them. He would put Councillor Kirkham's resolution for reconsideration of the school estimates to the meeting, but he would not support the motion, nor accept responsibility if the Council passed it.

Can Appeal to Ratepayers

The Reeve advised the School Trustees present that since the Council had failed to approve of their two items of extraordinary expense totalling $5,250, they could take the issue to the people, submit a referendum, and test the opinion of the ratepayers. If the referendum carried, then the Council would have to provide the money for the work thus desired.

Trustee Hobbs, chairman of the School Board, claimed that the Council had made a mistake, and should have granted the Board the appropriation for the purchase of the grounds for Cloverdale and Tillicum Schools. He said there were 300 children at Cloverdale School, and lack of playground accommodation there presented a menace. These grounds were vitally necessary, and he regretted the Council's action.

The Saanich School Board will meet in special session next Tuesday night, at 6:30 o'clock, in the city, at some place to be later arranged, to discuss the situation created through the Council's action last night, and decide upon the Board's future action in the matter.

NURSE'S CONFESSED KILLER COMMITTED

PAT HANLEY SENT UP FOR TRIAL AT TRAIL

To Answer at Nelson Assizes Charge of Murdering Mildred Neilson on February 6 Last

TRAIL, Feb. 27.—That Pat Hanley had gone from Vancouver to Bellingham, Wash., to buy a gun with which to shoot himself, and that this was the gun with which he eventually killed Miss Mildred Neilson, Trail nurse, came out at the insurance man's preliminary hearing here this afternoon on the charge of murder.

Chief of Police Benjamin Downes, of Trail, testified Hanley told this when under treatment in the Rossland hospital for his self-inflicted wound.

Interviewed Parents

The trip in question was that on which Hanley interviewed the girl's parents, immediately preceding the killing at Trail, February 6.

Other witnesses were Dr. C. W. Williams and J. B. Thom, Nurses Florence Eyten and Dorothy Ransome, and J. P. Schofield, the latter his business associate. Schofield testified to Hanley's severe fits.

Magistrate Noble Binns committed Hanley for trial at the next Nelson assizes, and he will be taken to the Nelson jail tomorrow.

The accused was still weak from his wound and appeared to be trying to pull himself together. He shook his head when asked if he had anything to say. E. P. Dawson, of Nelson, was his counsel.

Casakoff said that he did not know whether Peter Veregin's son would accept the invitation to come to Canada and succeed his father.

Favors Strong Air Force

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27. — Rear-Admiral William Sims, retired, today vigorously opposed before the House aircraft committee the creation of a unified air service as urged by Brigadier-General Mitchell, assistant army air chief. The admiral endorsed the building up of a powerful air force by the United States, however, and declared the airplane "will play a predominant part" in the next war.

FRENCH SOCIALIST FAVORS ARMY PLAN

DEPUTIES DECLINE TO REDUCE NUMBER OF MEN

By Vote of 406 to 36 Chamber Negatives Proposal of Communist to Cut Force

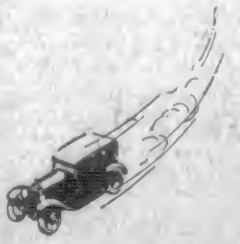

PARIS, Feb. 27.—During the debate in the Chamber of Deputies today on the War Ministry's budget, the fact was brought out that 607,000 comprised the total effectives of France's peace standing army. These effectives include colonial troops.

The strength of the army was made known just prior to the defeat, by a vote of 406 against 36, of the Communist Deputy Jean Renaud's amendment to reduce the number of troops to 500,000. Opposition to a decrease in the standing army came from an unexpected quarter in Paul Boncour, who is known as one of France's foremost Socialists and who is the French delegate to the League of Nations.

"To reduce the effectives of the existing army would constitute danger of death for the country at this time," said M. Boncour. He added that the army should not be reduced through budgetary measures, but that confidence should be placed in the Government to make efforts to effect the necessary reorganization.

M. Boncour was one of the staunchest advocates of the Geneva peace protocol.

PIONEER OF COMOX SUMMONED BY DEATH

Mr. Alexander Beaton Dies—Settled at Courtenay After Visiting the Neighborhood as Sailor

COURTENAY, Feb. 27.—The funeral of the late Mr. Alexander Beaton took place at the Sandwick Presbyterian Cemetery Wednesday afternoon. The body had been brought over from Port Coquitlam, where Mr. Beaton passed away. He was a native of the Isle of Skye, and was seventy-five years of age.

In his younger years he had followed a sailor's life, and had seen a considerable portion of the world. He paid several visits to the port of Comox before settling down in this district. After coming to Courtenay he held the position of road foreman for several years. He had not been in good health for the last two years. Two of his sons lost their lives in the Great War, and a third was wounded.

To mourn his loss he leaves a widow and six daughters, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Henderson, both living in Vancouver; Mrs. Carwithen, Mrs. Prain, Mrs. R. McCuaig and Miss Flora Beaton, all of the Courtenay district; and one son, Mr. Angus Beaton.

The body was borne to its last resting place by Messrs. Catchpole, Duncan, Mathewson, Rose, McQuillan and McKenzie. The Rev. J. W. Flinton officiated, in the absence of the Rev. W. T. Beattie. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

Sidney Returned Men Meet at Banquet Table

SIDNEY, Feb. 27.—A real social get-together banquet was held at the Sidney Hotel last night by the returned soldiers of North Saanich, when about seventy-five guests sat down to a splendid menu arranged by Mr. J. Greenwood. Col. Cy. Peck, V.C., M.P.P., was toastmaster and Mr. F. W. Spooner chairman for the evening. Among the invited guests was Major Gus Lyons, M.P.P., of Victoria.

After all had done full justice to the dinner, Col. Belson proposed the toast to the King. Col. Peck gave a speech on "Why we are here," and paid special tribute to those who had fallen, suggesting that some special memorial bearing the names of all soldiers should be placed in Sidney. The North Saanich Women's Institute, he said, was willing to have it placed in the children's playground, and he hoped the public organizations of North Saanich would take the matter up.

Major Gus Lyons gave reminiscences of the army in a humorous style much appreciated. Dr. F. Manning and Mr. Cory Wood also spoke along the same line. The speeches were interspersed with choruses lustily sung by the company and by two solos by Mr. P. Barlow.

The reunion was so successful that it is hoped to make it an annual event. The committee in charge were Col. Peck, Col. W. Belson, Capt. Wise, and Messrs. F. W. Spooner, F. Smith and R. Wylie.

Metchosin Scout Work Reviewed for Past Year

METCHOSIN, Feb. 27.—The annual meeting of the Metchosin Scout and Cub Pack Association was held in the Hall on Wednesday night, with a large attendance of parents, who were greatly pleased by the progress made, especially with the Cub Pack, during the past year. The secretary's report showed that the pack had met forty-four times during the year, had been inspected last July by Commissioner Scarrett, and that six boys had camped for a week at Telegraph Bay. The pack won the silver cup for swimming, competing against all the packs in Victoria, Cub Stanley Witty gaining the points for the pack. In the land sports held at the Willows Park the William Head section was second in models.

The Cubs were the guests of the Cathedral Pack at the Memorial Hall on Saturday last, when some excellent boxing events were staged.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mr. E. E. Bradford, president; Dr. Geddes, secretary-treasurer; Dr. C. F. Brown, Messrs. Lee, Gray, Witty and Mrs. F. A. Pearce, directors.

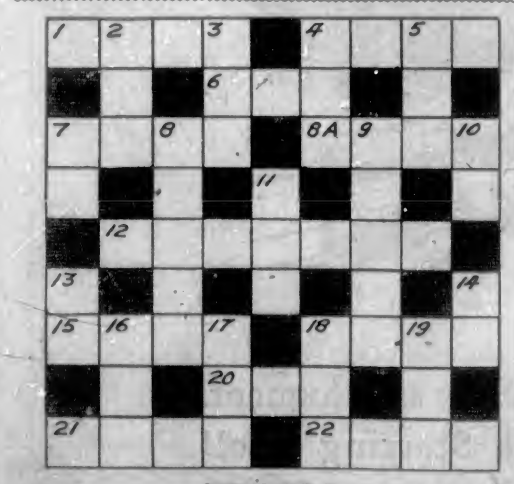

The association expressed gratitude to Mrs. Tyrell Godman for the great interest she had taken in the Cubs and Scouts and for lending her car so that the boxing instructor, Mr. Harry Estling, could attend every Saturday. The association also appreciated the action of Mr. Harry Estling giving his services as boxing instructor.

Mr. H. T. Ravenhill, assistant district commissioner, addressed the meeting on the responsibility of the association towards the boys under their care. The financial statement showed a balance of $55, and a committee was appointed to arrange for the building of new headquarters.

NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

Victoria Cougars Oppose Sheiks in Big Event Tonight

Newsy Lalonde's Saskatoon Crew Reach Here This Morning for Great Ice Fixture at Willows—Lester's Pets Confident of Winning Second Game Against Invaders on Local Pond—Packed Arena to Watch Battle

TONIGHT'S pond contest at the Willows Arena, at 9 o'clock, between the Victoria Cougars and the Sheiks of Saskatoon, promises to be one of the most thrilling and interesting hockey contests witnessed here this season. Calgary's win over Edmonton last night guarantees the Cougars a sure place in the play-off competitions, but the Victoria tribe is anxious to gain revenge on the Prairie team for what they did to the Coast aggregation when the latter toured the Saskatchewan centre three times.

The local arena will be jammed by enthusiastic rafbirds tonight to see the gruelling struggle between the rival sextettes, and what a battle it will likely prove! The Victoria boys are in the pink of condition for the struggle and confidently believe that they will emerge victorious on the long end of the count. The outfit that will arrive this morning think differently. It will be a warm argument, that's one thing certain, and an interesting one to hear.

One of the things that the Cougars must do tonight is skate, skate, skate. The Saskatoon Sheiks are a lot of speed kings, and the home players must take advantage of all breaks, uncork loads of speed, and keep in the game the whole time they are on the ice. Combination is another thing that must be practised throughout, while checking and backchecking must not be overlooked. If the Cougars show any kind of form like they displayed here last week against the Vancouver Maroons, then a victory for the Victoria boys can be hung up right now.

How Cougars Will Start

Lester Patrick announced last night to The Colonist how he would start his crew against the Saskatoon Sheiks. Captain Clem Loughlin and Gordie Fraser will pair on the defence with Happy Holmes, while Harold Hart, Frank Fredrickson and Jack "Hookcheck" Walker will start on the line. The rest of the team will have lots of opportunities to star during the engagement, which promises to be a great battle.

Newsy Lalonde did not play here last time the Sheiks were in town, owing to injuries he had received in the game previous to that contest. However, he will be right on the job this evening, and will likely commence the game in centre ice. The two Saskatoon Cooks, Billy and Bunny, will open on the offensive, while the strong defence of the invaders will consist of Hainesworth in the cage, with Cameron and Reise as his companions. Lawrie Scott, Phil Stevens, Gordon and Denneny will get into the game and "do their stuff."

The Saskatoon Sheiks and the Victoria Cougars have battled thus far four times this season, three times in the Saskatchewan centre and once at the Willows Arena here. Thrice have the Sheiks beaten Victoria. Once the honors were captured by the Coast sextette. The first contest between these two teams took place in Saskatoon on December 12 last, when the Sheiks won by a 4-1 count. Then the Saskatoon boys came West and Victoria trounced the Prairie outfit by the score of 3 goals to 2. The next two struggles between these clubs, both of which were played in Saskatoon, were won by the Sheiks by the respective scores of 4-2 and 5-1.

A Memorable Encounter

Local fans well remember the game in Victoria with Saskatoon. The fracas was without doubt the finest of the season. Each team scored two goals in the first period. The next spasm was scoreless. Excitement was intense. The decision came about the middle of the final stanza, when Jack Walker accepted a pass from Jocko Anderson and slipped the disc into the visitors' net for the deciding count of the entertainment. On that occasion Harry Meeking, Harold Halderson and Gordie Fraser were nursing injuries.

The Saskatoon ice, which is smaller than that of the Coast towns, never did appeal to the Cougars, and they have been unable to win in their three attempts there this season. The Victoria men will have the advantage of playing on their home pond tonight, and have had five days' rest, while the invaders played both last Monday and Wednesday evenings, and have been travelling westward since the latter date.

The home team has been working hard throughout the week, going through daily practices in order that they might be in the best possible condition for tonight's battle. Every man feels fit and is prepared to make his contribution towards a Cougars' victory this evening. Stiff opposition can be expected from the Saskatoon crowd, but a packed arena will cheer the Cougars on to victory. It should be the event of the season.

The Rival Squads

The teams will be as follows:

Victoria	Position	Saskatoon
Holmes	Goal	Hainesworth
Fraser	Defence	Cameron
Loughlin	Defence	Reise
Fredrickson	Centre	Lalonde
Hart	Wing	W. Cook
Walker	Wing	F. Cook
Halderson	Reserve	Scott
Anderson	Reserve	Stevens
Foyston	Reserve	Denneny
Meeking	Reserve	Gordon

PHIL STEVENS

One of the members of the Saskatoon defence, who will be out with his team tonight at the Willows in an attempt to prevent the Cougars slipping the rubber past Big Boy Hainesworth. Stevens has been playing a nice brand of hockey this season, is a tireless worker, and aggressive player, and is going hard during the time he is in the spotlight.

PLAY FINAL TODAY FOR M'KECHNIE CUP

Varsity Needs But a Draw Today With Vancouver to Win the Rugby Trophy for Fifth Time

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27.—All roads will lead to Brockton Point tomorrow afternoon, when Varsity and Vancouver tangle in the final and deciding game of the McKechnie Cup series of the British Columbia championship. The game will start at 3 o'clock. Vancouver can win the trophy for the first time in five seasons by defeating the Varsity tomorrow, but a draw will give the collegians the title for the fifth time.

Varsity has defeated Vancouver and Victoria each once in the provincial series this year, and in the second match with Victoria had only a draw. This gives them five points. Vancouver has defeated Victoria for a total of four points.

Picks One American On All-World Team To Beat All-Blacks

PARIS, Feb. 27.—Jack Patrick, of Palo Alto, Cal., a member of the American Olympic rugby football team, is named by Gaston Benac, France's noted football expert, as one of the forwards in his selection of a team, picked throughout the world, to beat the New Zealand All-Blacks.

In choosing fifteen players and ten substitutes, M. Benac names nine Englishman, nine Frenchmen, two Welshmen, two Scotchmen, two Irishmen and one American.

World's Hockey Series To Be Played on Coast

CALGARY, Feb. 27.—Arrangements have been completed with Frank Patrick by President E. L. Richardson of the Western Canada Hockey League, for the use of the Vancouver Arena to play the world's series between the champions of the East and West. The Stanley Cup series will be the best three out of five, and the first game will probably be played March 24. It is possible that should a Prairie team win out in the W.C.H.L., the first game may be played in the home city of the winning team, but as weather conditions might be quite unfavorable all of the games may be played in Vancouver.

LAWRENCE SCOTT

A member of the crack forward division of the Saskatoon Sheiks, who perform here tonight at the Arena, in one of the most important contests of the year. Lawrie intends giving Happy Holmes lots to do in the Victoria cage. Scott broke through the Regina defence on Wednesday night and scored two goals against McCusker. He is after another brace of tallies tonight.

SCOTLAND PLAYS IRELAND TODAY

INTERNATIONAL RUGBY TO BE PLAYED AT DUBLIN

Win for the Thistle Will Put Northerners in Excellent Position for Winning Championship

EDINBURGH, Feb. 27.—The forty-third annual international rugby match between Scotland and Ireland is scheduled for tomorrow, when the fifteen that have placed Scotland at the head of the international standings so far, will lock horns with an equal number of Ireland's best rugby players at Dublin. The game marks the sixth of the series for the present season, and tomorrow sees the teams matched more equally than at any other time this year.

While Scotland is credited with two victories, one over France by 35 points to 4, and the other over Wales by 24 to 14, the Irishmen have acquired one win over France by 9 to 3 and they were also able to draw with England at six points all.

Of the forty-two games already played between Scotland and Ireland, the Scots have registered 29 wins to Ireland's 10.

Should the Scots win tomorrow they will be in excellent position for the championship, for England, whom they meet on March 21, has already had to split points in one game.

The international standing now is:

	P.	W.	D.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Scotland	2	2	0	0	49	18	4
Ireland	2	1	1	0	15	9	3

BASKET CHAMPIONSHIP SEMI-FINALS TONIGHT

Fidelis Girls Play Nanaimo at High School—First Presbyterian Seniors Will Meet Duncan

Tonight at the High School gymnasium a fine basketball programme is assured. With the island championship at stake in both the senior men's and senior ladies' divisions some very hard games are expected.

Nanaimo senior girls have evidently taken everything into camp up the line. Local fans have heard very little this season of the calibre of the senior girls' teams at Nanaimo and elsewhere up the Island, but the local girls are taking nothing for granted and will be out in full force to meet the invaders.

With Isobel Crawford at top form, and the rest of the Fidelis girls all in tip-top shape for the game, Victoria will be very well represented.

Last season the Fidelis girls travelled to Nanaimo and won their game while there. The Nanaimo teams, however, may have benefited by last season's experiences and it is rumored that the girls' team which is coming down to represent the Coal City will be a strong one.

The following girls are all available for the Fidelis tonight: Forwards, Isobel Crawford, Beth Campbell, Hilda Best; centre, Jeanette McQueen; guards, M. Breckenridge, Iris Philbrook, B. McMurchie and Vera McNaughton.

Once again the First Presbyterian senior men will be called upon to represent the Capital in the open British Columbia championships, and the Firsts are being all primed up for the battle tonight with the fast Duncan squad.

Duncan have always been well-known for their speed, and this season is no exception. They will be a hard team to beat on any floor and are expected to give the Firsts a great game. The Firsts are away below last year's strength, but are still quite capable of upholding the reputation of the Capital City. Bob Whyte, Ed. Logan, Harry Sargison, Bill Nachtrieb, Bill Hudson, Patterson and several others are with the champs this season.

Owing to the importance of the games tonight a neutral referee has been secured. Bert McIntyre, a well-known arbiter from Vancouver, will handle both games.

Tickets are on sale at the Y.M.C.A. The local School Board requests that no smoking be permitted at the High School tonight.

ENGLISH BOWLERS IN DEADLY FORM

DISMISS SEVEN AUSTRALIANS AT CHEAP PRICE

English Fielding Also Big Factor in Comparatively Easy Dismissal of Opposing Batsmen

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Feb. 27.—Though Collins, their captain, won the toss and thus by choosing to bat first gained the advantage of a perfect wicket, the Australian batsmen failed against the deadly English bowling, and when stumps were drawn this evening had lost seven wickets in their first innings for 239 runs in the fifth and final test match of the present series between England and Australia. Australia won the first three and England the fourth match.

Collins batted first and was out for one run. Gregory was eliminated, when the score stood at 55 and Ryder at 64. After lunch, Andrews was put out with the score at 99. Taylor following with 108. Then Ponsford and Kippex, the latter making his debut in the test series, became associated, and together ran the score to 208, the most valuable partnership so far for the match. Kippex batted an hour and forty minutes for 42 runs, and Ponsford two hours and twenty minutes, adding 90. On Ponsford's dismissal, with the score standing at 289, stumps were drawn owing to darkness.

The English fielding was excellent, notably that of Gilligan and the veteran wicketkeeper, Strudwick. Twenty thousand persons saw the opening of the match. Scores:

SILVER SPRINGS WIN FROM WILCOX HATTERS

Silver Spring Brewery bowlers improved their position in the City League on Thursday by taking all three games from the Wilcox Hat Company. The Hatters had to play without the assistance of Wilcox and with the exception of the first game, which the Hetters lost by 33 pins, the Brewers took the honors with ease. Miller was in top-notch form with 551 and Handley also had a score of 519. Moulton was high for the Hatters with 515.

Fairalls rang in a surprise on Wilcox Hat "A" by taking two games from them in the Commercial League. After losing the first game Fairalls came back strongly, winning both games easily. Holman followed his team-mate of last week (Leetham) by making his first score of over 200. He was also high man for his team with 489. Kruse, for the Hatters, rolled 493, being high for his team. CRICKETERS FAVOR TWO-DAY MATCHES

Would Play League Games Over Consecutive Saturdays—Seek to Revive Interest in Tournament

The large and enthusiastic crowd of cricketers that gathered in the lounge room of the Chamber of Commerce last night went to point that prospects for the coming season were very bright. The meeting was specially called for the purpose of discussing any matters that the various representatives of the local teams saw fit to place before the league at their annual meeting at the end of March. The question of playing two-day matches on two consecutive Saturdays was discussed for well over an hour, when at the conclusion the meeting saw fit to place a resolution before the annual meeting that they play in the "A" League a series of home and home games, and at the conclusion of this series each team should play a two-day game as an experiment.

Some of the representatives present stated that in other countries where this scheme had been put into practice it had proved successful and had brought cricket to a much higher standard.

The suggestion that the two-day games be played in the "B" league was carried by the meeting and will be placed before the annual meeting when they gather together next month. The Pacific Coast tournament came up for discussion, and the meeting went on record in favor of appointing a strong working committee to try and revive interest in what used to be one of the most interesting sporting events of the Summer season.

DATES ARRANGED FOR TENNIS TOURNAMENTS

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27.—E. J. H. Cardinall, British Columbia delegate to the annual meeting of the Dominion Lawn Tennis Association, presented his report to the executive of the British Columbia Association last night.

The Provincial starting date for the Dominion series is July 6, and it will be run in conjunction with the annual Mainland tournament. The winner in each event will take both titles. The Canada championships are open to the world and this year a cosmopolitan entry is expected.

Championship tournaments in British Columbia for 1925 will begin with the staging of the Kelowna Lawn Tennis Club beginning June 22. Special arrangements are being made so that the best players in the Northwest will play in the up-country series. Eric Dart, of Kelowna, was present at last night's executive meeting, as also was Dr. Boak, representing Victoria.

RITOLA REINSTATED

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The reinstatement of Willie Ritola, Finnish-American distance runner, who was suspended for failure to appear in Boston, was assured today upon the receipt of a majority of votes cast in the telegraphic poll of the national registration committee of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Sons of Canada Hockey Team to Stage Benefit Dance for Ivan Temple

The Sons of Canada hockey team will hold benefit basketball games and a dance in aid of Ivan Temple, former member of the Sons' team, who lost his eye while playing with the Victoria All-Star team, next Friday night in the Victoria High School auditorium. Two games will be played in the basketball exhibitions, the first between the Victoria High School senior girls and the Civil Service, while the second will be between the snappy Falcons five and the C. P.R. squad.

The first game will be started at 7:30 p.m., while the second on the programme will follow immediately, and be concluded around 9 o'clock, so as to give the dancers plenty of time to do their stuff. Ozard's orchestra will supply the latest dance music, and the committee is sparing no time to make the affair an outstanding success.

Sportive Punches

By the "Old 'Un"

We thought the war was over and that most of the allied nations had agreed at any rate to let their old enemies in again on athletic events and sporting competitions.

* * * * * *

But did you notice what JAKE SCHAEFER (American-born, is he not?) did to his German opponent in that billiard match the other night? He wouldn't let the poor chap play at all.

* * * * * *

Just started from spot and ran out the whole 400 points while his Teuton antagonist never got a chance to use his cue.

* * * * * *

There is no record of such a thing having happened before in an international match, though it is not unknown in ordinary matches at English billiards. The Old 'Un himself has seen a good player win a game of a hundred up without his opponent doing more than give a miss in baulk for his first stroke, and seen it happen more than once.

* * * * * *

Talking of billiards, the Old 'Un hears that JACK McMILLAN, now champion of Canada at the English game, is coming over here shortly to give some exhibitions.

* * * * * *

Jack is well-known and popular in Victoria, where for some years he presided over two of the billiard businesses of the city before returning to Vancouver.

* * * * * *

All he needs is opponents of class enough to bring him out and he should be good enough to win even higher honors than the Canadian championship.

* * * * * *

Do you believe in poetic justice?

What do you know of housemaid's knee?

Do you believe in the possibility of acquiring a "tennis elbow" by playing golf?

* * * * * *

The above questions have nothing to do with the income tax, or anything so comparatively pleasant as that. They are intended as a warning to the unseemly jocular and unsympathetic reboot.

* * * * * *

Some time ago the Old 'Un read a famous author's reference to housemaid's knee, and it made him laugh.

* * * * * *

Later on he heard tell of "tennis elbow," and, thinking it was in the same category as housemaid's knee, he perpetrated an attempt at a Jeromesque joke anent it.

* * * * * *

And now HE'S GOT IT through playing golf and trying to imitate the methods of the expert, and he knows that there is nothing humorous about it whatever.

* * * * * *

On the contrary, it makes him look and feel ridiculous, it makes his score cards look grotesque, it destroys his reputation for veracity when put forward as an "alibi," and it tends to destroy the purity and politeness of his conversations on the links.

* * * * * *

He hereby apologizes to any and all sufferers from tennis elbow, or golf elbow, whose feelings may have been hurt by his attempts at wit concerning their sufferings, and hopes that the flippant will take warning from the poetic justice which has overtaken him.

* * * * * *

For, believe us, TENNIS ELBOW OR GOLF FUNNY BONE IS NO JOKE. (Ouch! we hit the typewriter too hard that time!) and, so far as we can learn, the only thing to do for it is to GRIN AND BEAR IT, or CUSS IT AND SEE OTHER PEOPLE GRIN.

Who Will Play Off In Pro Hockey Now Is Finally Settled

Victoria, Saskatoon and Calgary to Battle for Honor of Contesting Possession of Stanley Cup With N. H. L. Champions—Tigers Last Night Eliminated Eskimos With 4 to 3 Victory at Edmonton

EDMONTON, Feb. 27.—The question of which three teams will enter the Western Canada Hockey League play-offs was settled here tonight, when Calgary Tigers sent the Eskimos down to a 4-3 defeat in a fast game in which there were occasional flashes of brilliance and several lapses into mediocrity. Saskatoon, Victoria and Calgary will now fight it out to see which sextette will battle the N.H.L. champions for the Stanley Cup.

Edmonton took the lead early in the game and for the first two periods appeared to have the Tigers outclassed. But either overconfidence or playing out of energy left the Eskimos without the necessary punch to drive home a victory, and the Tigers, coming back strong in the third canto, came from behind to settle the play-off entries.

Simpson Is Hurt

Eskimos were handicapped right at the outset of the third frame, Simpson, who had stepped into the way of many shots, stood in front of one too many and got a severe blow on the ankle which necessitated his leaving the ice for the remainder of the game.

During the second period Oatman rushed Fowler and held him down on the ice. Fowler got up and pushed him away, and they were both banished. Keats went into goal, and while Fowler was off Tigers did not get one solitary shot on goal, and when Tigers put their full force into the attack, Briden secured the puck, eluded the entire Calgary team and scored to put the Eskimos in the lead.

The pace was fast throughout, and excitement was at a fever heat. Keats and Stanley were best for Eskimos, while for Tigers Oliver was the outstanding luminary, with "Baldy" Winkler backing him up, running him a close race.

Summary

First period—1, Edmonton, Stanley from Trapp, 5:17.

Second period—2, Calgary, Oliver from Sparrow, 7:30; 3, Edmonton, Briden, 5:50.

Third period—4, Calgary, Crawford from Oliver, 2:31; 5, Calgary, Gardiner, 3:39; 6, Edmonton, Stanley from Keats, 5:25; 7, Calgary, Oliver from Anderson, 4:10.

Penalties

First period—Briden.

Second period—Mackey, Shepperd, Oatman, Fowler and Oliver.

Third period—Sperrow and Wilson.

Nurmi Fairly Normal in All Measurements

(Copyright, 1925, in United States, Canada and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance. Copyright (New York World) Press Publishing Company. All rights reserved.)

By CHARLES E. PARKER

To whom Paavo Nurmi told his own story, which has been appearing serially in The Colonist.

"What sort of a chap is this Paavo Nurmi? How big is he? How does his running differ from that of our athletes?"

These are persistent questions nowadays as the thousands who have not seen him in action, strive to gain from the thousands who have seen him, a description of this wonder gunner of Finland who spends night after night whipping America's best athletes and setting one or more world's records every time he answers the starter's pistol.

And, strangely, almost every answer they receive differs in certain important details.

Some picture the Phantom Finn as "a pale, little man." Others report him as a mighty-muscled athlete with the thigh development of a bicycle rider. Still others hold he is tall and slim. Paavo's complexion is called "pasty" by some, while others say it carries the "rosey glow of a healthy boy."

The form he employs in running draws its variety of answers. A description of Paavo based on a study of that young man, which began five years ago when he toed the mark for the Olympic 5,000-metre run at Antwerp, is given herewith—a description which, to a measure, will account for the contrary impressions that are now going the rounds.

Some Measurements

The statistics on Paavo's age and measurements should prove informing. They portray him to be slightly above average height; somewhat under weight for that height, and only in his chest measurement showing unusual development.

The statistics follow:

Age	27 years 7½ months (Paavo was born June 13, 1897)
Height	5 feet 9 inches
Weight	147 pounds
Neck	15 inches
Chest, normal	38 inches
Chest, expanded	42 inches
Biceps	12 inches
Forearm	10 inches
Waist	29½ inches
Thigh	19½ inches
Calf	16½ inches
Ankle	7½ inches

In athletic uniform Paavo does not conform to the popular picture of the ideal athlete. His legs, although well proportioned, are much slimmer than those of the average American foot-racer, and his arms are positively thin. In street clothes none would take him to be the greatest runner the world has produced. Some would smile if you claimed he possessed any athletic skill.

Not Picked as Athlete

This was brought to my attention many times during Paavo's trip from New York to Chicago and return. Trainman and fellow passengers almost invariably picked Hugo Quest, Nurmi's American sponsor, as the athlete and Nurmi as the attendant.

Paavo's shambling gait as he moved through the train or walked up and down the platforms during the stops en route fooled some of them; others fell into their error in studying the complexions of the two sons of Finland, for at that time the clear, healthy skin of Quist contrasted markedly with the somewhat lined and colorless epidermis covering the Nurmi physiognomy.

But Nurmi's countenance is not always lined and colorless. He lacks the fine skin for which the Northern European nations are famous. His is of coarser texture and never shows that distinct and distinctive coloring one expects to see. Yet at times it takes on the robust glow of the Nordic peoples.

Paavo is a young man of moods. Behind the "poker face" a lot of things go on, and they are reflected not in the expression as is usually the case, but in the complexion.

Paavo came here with no experience in indoor foot-racing to face the most difficult programme ever attempted by a track athlete. He did not come as a carefree athlete seeking the thrills and enjoyment of his favorite sport, but as the standard bearer of the Finnish nation, with the eye of every Finn upon him, and all Finland demanding that he continue under strange conditions and amid strange surroundings, the remarkable career he started at home.

It was that mental burden that Paavo carried with him into those earlier races in this country. And it was reflected in his lined face and pasty skin, and led to the conflicting descriptions of him.

Change for the Better

But this week in the Millrose games it was not a pasty-faced sunken-cheeked Paavo who took the mark. Paavo had found himself. He had mastered indoor racing and not only was living up to but exceeding the expectations of his people.

His worries were at an end. The lines had vanished from his countenance; the hollow cheeks had filled out to the normal condition of a highly-trained athlete; the skin had taken on a rosier hue, and Paavo appeared more the typical Nordic I had seen in the Antwerp Olympic Games of five years ago.

The varying descriptions of Nurmi's form in running can be charged to the perhaps unconscious efforts of the describers to see and accentuate only one or another of its particular phases.

Some tell you he carries his torso in an upright pose; others that he leans slightly backward; still others that he has a forward body lean. Some say he lands heel-first on he ground; others that he lands on he ball of his foot; others that he runs flat-footed.

And all of them are right as far as they go, for Paavo does all of those things in the course of a race—the particular thing depending on what he sets himself to accomplish.

He adopts the forward lean of the body and lands on the balls of his feet at the start of the race; assumes an upright stance as the race continues and lands almost flat-footed or on his heels as the race progresses and in the final burst for the tape his body inclines slightly backward.

In short, Paavo runs with his legs and allows his body to conform to its natural inclination.

The majority of his rivals, by accepting the forward lean of the torso, driving the arms and landing on the balls of the feet, call upon all sections of the anatomy to aid them at the task. In theory the American idea seems the sounder, but in practice—with Paavo Nurmi doing the practising—the Nurmi plan is distinctly the better.

Testifying to its effectiveness are the records which stand to the credit of the incomparable Finn.

How to Play Basketball

By EDWIN J. MATHER and ELMER D. MITCHELL
Coach and Athletic Director, University of Michigan

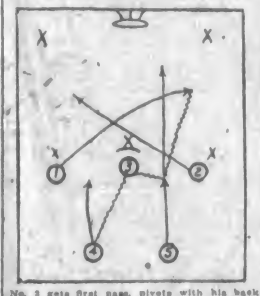

This is the last of a series of articles written by Edwin J. Mather and Elmer D. Mitchell, coach and athletic director, respectively, at the University of Michigan, dealing with basketball in all phases of the sport.

XXV

In sizing up the peculiarities of the opponents' style of play, it is perhaps easiest to determine the nature of their defensive tactics. The methods of defense have become fairly well standardized.

As soon as you feel fairly sure as to their general plan of defense, you should plan your attack to take advantage of the weak points which are usually inherent in any given style of defense.

The offensive tactics of an opposing team are not always easy to discover. However, it will soon be apparent as to whether an opponent has a well-rounded team, or whether their play

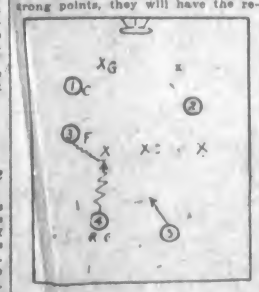

No. 3 gets first pass, pivots with his back to the opponent and back-passes to No. 5, who has bounded in No. 1 and follow through for a return pass if No. 1 is covered. If the pass cannot be made to No. 5, No. 3 can back-pass to No. 4, who takes a long shot or a dribble through if there is an opening.

is built around a star performer. In this latter case, your defense must be changed to check this player a all hazards.

The star must be so closely watched that he will have no opening from which to attempt to score. It is well to assign two men to the duty of watching such a player.

At the beginning of a game against a team whose tactics are unfamiliar to him, the coach is often confronted by the question as to whether it is better to play safe until the opponents have shown their strength or to open up with a rush, trying to get the jump.

A team which plays a steady, consistent game had better try to check the first rushes of the opponents, knowing that after its players have discovered the latter's weak and strong points, they will have the reserve power to wear down their opponents and by increasing their own offensive strength, make a strong finish.

If the defense is massed, advance the ball to the centre of the floor with the guard only. Running guard No. 4 tries to draw X out, is then passed or bounces the ball to No. 2, who should be free for a shot; if covered by XG he passes to No. 1, if covered by XC he passes to one of the guards, who goes into the centre opening. The one guard No. 4 follows the dribbler so that the latter can have some one to pass back to. This play will mean disaster to the team using the space defense.

A team that starts a game off form should emphasize defensive work until it begins to strike its true stride. Its early offensive play should be very deliberate especially if the opponents massed their defense.

Do not criticise players immediately after a close hard-fought game. All the time should players be criticised for mistakes brought on by inexperience, or for being off form in shooting. No criticism should come for loafing or failure to follow instructions or for the bone-head play caused by carelessness of attention when instructions are being given.

GERMAN CHAMPION HAS HIS INNINGS

Hagenlacher Beats Willie Hoppe in Tournament Match—Horemans Defeats Welker Cochran

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—In one of the biggest upsets in international 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournaments, Erich Hagenlacher, German champion, tonight came from behind in a wonderful display of cue artistry and defeated Willie Hoppe, world's champion, 400 to 299, in 12 innings. The victory left Jake Schaefer, former champion, who ran 400 from spot last night against Hagenlacher, in the lead of the standings.

Edouard Horemans, Belgian, defeated Welker Cochran, Hollywood, California, 400 to 266, in ten innings, in the eighth match of the tournament.

Seattle Ducks Are Basketball Champs

SEATTLE, Feb. 27.—The Ducks, a basketball team composed of newspapermen on The Seattle Times, have finished their season with one of the best records of any basketball team in Seattle, having won 17 out of 23 games played to date. The team was undefeated in a league composed of Seattle mercantile houses.

Games included contests with the Vancouver Rowing Club, in Vancouver, B.C., Foster, Kent and Anacortes. The Ducks took their worst beating from Vancouver, 48 to 32, and gave their most decisive drubbing to Anacortes, 47 to 6.

SCOTTISH RIFLEMEN PREPARE FOR SEASON

Capt. J. H. Gillespie Again Elected President of Battalion Association —Other Officers Chosen

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the members of the Canadian Scottish Rifle Association was held in the Armories on Thursday for the purpose of reviewing the work of 1924, electing an executive and laying plans for the season of 1925.

Capt. J. H. Gillespie, the president of the association, in reviewing the work of the last year, pointed with pride to the fact that one of the members, Corp. Beaumont, had for the second time in succession been chosen to represent Canada as a member of the team to go to Bisley this year.

He also mentioned the fact that another member of the association, C.Q.M.S. A. E. Ashe was chosen last year on the Canadian team to shoot in the international match against the United States at Ottawa, an honor not previously earned by any shot from British Columbia. In addition this same marksmen earned the distinction of being the first to score three successive "possibles" over the long ranges on the Connaught ranges at Ottawa.

Capt. J. H. Gillespie was again elected president, Capt. H. E. Bate, vice-president, L.-C. F. Whitford, secretary, and Sergt. D. Fyvie, treasurer. A committee consisting of Major R. G. Monteith, C.S.M. W. Lisney, C.Q.M.S. A. E. Ashe, Capt. W. E. Tapley and Capt. P. R. M. Wallis, was appointed to conduct the affairs of the association.

Lieut.-Col. H. M. Urquhart, D.S.O., M.C., A.D.C., officer commanding the regiment and honorary president of the association, thanked the members of the committee for their work during the past year and spoke in optimistic vein of the prospects for 1925.

New rifles and new barrels are on hand, and everything possible is being done in the way of encouraging the younger shots, of which the battalion now has a considerable number. The executive will meet on Thursday.

Redistribution Report Interests Torontonians

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—Toronto will get sixteen seats in the legislature instead of ten, as at present, as a result of the redistribution now proposed by the Ferguson Government, it is reported at the Parliament Buildings. These seats will be taken from rural Ontario, and the total number of seats in the House will not be increased. According to lobby reports, London, Ottawa and Windsor also are to get an extra member each.

Fire Insurance Glee Entertains Tourists

Last night, in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium, members of the Victoria District Fire Insurance Agents' Association capably demonstrated the fact that their accomplishments were by no means limited to the sale of policies, when they entertained over two hundred visitors in the city.

The Fire Insurance Glee Club, which made its first public appearance, was loudly applauded, as also was Mrs. Lillian Attfield, with her dulcimer and mandolin; while Messrs. Scrivener and Company created much amusement in a one-act comedy.

Following a dozen musical items, the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing.

Next Friday will be "visitors' farewell night," when the Naval Cadets' Band will provide the musical programme.

Artists Get Unrehearsed Thrills When on Location

SEATTLE, Feb. 27.—A dispatch received here today from Banff, Alta., related that Frank Lloyd, producer, and associates, engaged in making a film in the Canadian Rockies, were whirled away yesterday by a snowslide while at work. As Lloyd and other men came shooting down an incline a team of dogs driven by Victor McLaglan and drawing Viola Dana in a sled, turned so sharply that they threw Miss Dana over a bank. Those the slide struck, with Lloyd, were Norbert Brodin and Dewey Wrigley, cameramen; Mason Litson, production manager, and William Brewster, a Banff pioneer.

NEW YORK STOCKS IRREGULARLY LOWER

Higher Federal Reserve Rates Reacts on Prices, Followed by Rise—Cancelled by Profit-Taking

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Decline in prices was the stock market's first reaction to the raising of the Federal Reserve discount rate from 3 to 3½ per cent. When it was discovered, however, that most of the selling came from bear traders and that there was little general liquidation, the market rallied 1 to 5 points from its low levels. The subsequent raising of the call money rate to 5 per cent, coupled with the usual week-end profit-taking, turned prices downward again in the late trading, closing quotations being irregularly lower with net losses of 1 to 3 points. Pivotal industries were reactionary most of the day.

Independent strength was shown by the wide variety of industrial issues. Famous Players touched a record top at 101⅝.

Rails Yield to Selling

Most of the rails yielded readily to selling pressure, the Western Pacific issues being an outstanding exception.

Canadian Pacific dropped more than 2 points to 147¼.

Call money renewed at 4¼ per cent and then advanced to 4½ and 5 per cent in reflection of the higher rediscount rates and the usual heavy month-end demand for funds.

Time money rates also displayed a firmer tone, 60-90 days' funds being quoted at 3¾ flat and the longer maturities at 4 to 4¼ per cent. Prime commercial paper commanded 3¾ per cent.

Sterling

Demand sterling, which dropped 1⅛c yesterday to $4.74⅝ following the announcement of the higher bank rate, recovered its loss today on receipt of London cables predicting an increase in the Bank of England rate next week. French francs yielded slightly to 5.15c on reports that circulation of the Bank of France was close to the statutory limits of forty-one billion francs. Other changes were largely nominal.

Bond prices were mildly depressed by the increase in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate to 3½ per cent, although no drastic liquidation developed. Losses were recorded in all sections of the list, but except in a few instances were limited to a point or two.

Chicago Grain

(Supplied by R. P. Clark & Co., Ltd.)

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Wheat: Closed higher for the day in spite of enormous profit-taking. From the bottom wheat has scored an advance of about twenty cents and some reaction should be expected. While the general conditions are becoming stronger, we may have a setback of a temporary nature from this level. Farmers' stock of visibles were bullish as reported. Foreign buying of wheat in all positions has been heavy. On the setbacks we would buy wheat, but advise caution in following advances.

Corn: Corn closed steady after a seesaw market within a narrow range. As in wheat, the market took profit-taking in good shape. Cash markets firm. Receipts were 154 cars. Hogs advanced 15 to 20 cents, which makes a decidedly more favorable comparison with corn and wheat. On setbacks we feel inclined to buy.

Oats: Were relatively weak. Dominated by the cash situation. We look for a narrow market with purchases on setbacks advisable for more moderate turns.

Rye—Closed a little higher. Exports sluggish. There should be a better export demand in the near future. Will follow trend of wheat. —L.

STRONG UNDERTONE HOLDS PRICES UP

Winnipeg Wheat Maintains Price Around Highest of Thursday—Eases Off Towards Close

WINNIPEG, Feb. 27.—Strong undertone of the wheat market today held prices around the high mark of yesterday, the bullish sentiment at one time sending May wheat up to $2.05¼. Buying pressure eased off slightly during the latter part of the session, respective closing figures being May $2.03⅝, July $1.88¼ and October 156⅝.

Trade was rather mixed, exporters, millers and shippers showing considerable interest. Offerings were not heavy and were readily taken by strong interests.

Winnipeg Grain Letter

(Supplied by R. P. Clark & Co., Ltd.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 27.—Wheat: The undertone to the market was decidedly firm again and notwithstanding that Liverpool did not fulfill expectations, prices at one time were two cents higher. The full advance was checked by bear selling in the last hour. There was considerable export business in the deferred futures. Trade was rather mixed but there was good buying, especially during the first part of session, by millers' exporters and the offerings, while not large until near the close, were easily absorbed. Seaboard reported export business yesterday of considerable volume. There appears to be lots of confidence in the market and foreign buying is again looked for in volume. We continue to feel that the market should be bought on reaction but advise caution on the advances. Market is now more of a two-sided affair.

The coarse grains followed the trend of market generally outside of oats, which were heavy. Offerings light but crushers refused to follow the advance of ten cents recorded of late.

Features Noted on Montreal Exchange

MONTREAL, Feb. 27.—Heavy trading in national breweries was a feature of today's stock market. This issue closed at 55⅛, down 2. Atlantic Sugar suffered a decline of 3¼, at 27¾, selling at one time as low as 27.

Winnipeg Railway was third in activity, closing at 44⅝, a net gain of ⅝ after having sold as high as 44⅝.

Wayagamack was the strong feature of the market, selling at the new high of 52, up 2. Three other stocks sold at new peaks, Goodyear preferred closing at 97, up 1; Tooke Brothers preferred at 48, up ½, and Winnipeg Railway preferred selling at 89, up 1.

Other changes: Asbestos off 1½; Canada Cement off ⅝, and the preferred off 1¼; Ogilvie preferred 1⅝, and Spanish River off ⅛.

HIGHER MONEY RATES

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The advance in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York from 3 to 3 1-2 per cent is regarded as likely to have important results here, including a possible rise in the Bank of England rate, which has been four per cent since July, 1923. The financial editors of the newspapers discuss the possibility of withdrawals of United States balances here which, it is pointed out, are decidedly large.

CANADIAN CANNERS

ROYAL OAK NEWS

ROYAL OAK, Feb. 27.—After the Winter's work on the property, situated just above the Royal Oak Burial Park, which has been in course of preparation as a game farm, it is reported that the sanctuary will be in operation shortly. Efforts are being made to have readjustment made in the water connection of the Burial Park, so that an ample supply of water will be available for the game farm.

About fifteen members of the Royal Oak Women's Institute and of Strawberry Vale Women's Institute were guests of the Victoria Steam Laundry yesterday afternoon. Much interest was displayed by the ladies in the several processes through which the huge parcels of laundry were put. Mr. W. J. Jeune, Mr. Johnston and Mr. Wallace escorted the party and explained in detail the system used by modern laundries such as the one they were viewing. Little souvenirs of the occasion were presented to the ladies, who expressed much pleasure with the result of their visit to the plant.

Mr. H. H. Grist, West Road, and Mr. W. D. Coffey, East Road, spent Thursday in Victoria, where they acted as delegates for the Victoria Farmers' Institute at the convention of District "A," Farmers' Institutes, in the Parliament Buildings.

A large number of residents attended the dance held in Royal Oak Hall last evening, under the auspices of the R.O.W.I. Howard Robinson's orchestra supplied the music, and supper was served by the ladies.

Business

Increased Demand for Copper to Benefit British Columbia—Sugar Industry One Cause of Advance

Consumption of 165,000,000 pounds of copper and its alloys by the automotive industry in 1924; an annual requirement by the American sugar industry of 35,600,000 pounds of copper for tubing, and use of more than 8,000,000 pounds of copper yearly for manufacture of bronze and copper insect screen cloth, are shown by recent surveys of those industries made by the American Copper & Brass Research Association.

Copper for Autos

In discussing copper consumption in the automotive field the association states that the trend toward lasting construction, and the growing preference for closed cars point to increased use of copper and its products, so that a market for 200,000,000 pounds annually in the automotive industry is not a remote possibility.

Approximately 3,650,000 motor vehicles of all classes were produced in 1924. Copper content of the American car or truck varies all the way from 18 to 750 pounds. Total copper consumption of the industry on the basis of 1924 production, estimated at 165,000,000 pounds, includes repair parts, replacements, etc.

Tubing for Sugar Industry

Sugar industry is an important consumer of copper and copper products, principally in the form of tubing.

Cane sugar production in North and South America requires 26,000,000 pounds of copper tubing yearly, beet sugar produced in the United States and Canada, 2,500,000 pounds, and refining and other miscellaneous operations in the United States, 7,140,000 pounds—annual requirement of 35,640,000 pounds of copper tubing in sugar making.

In production of the world's yearly output of 13,000,000 tons of cane sugar, approximately 500,000,000 pounds of copper tubing are in use. Annual output of beet sugar is more than 5,000,000 tons, and approximately 225,000,000 pounds of copper tubing are constantly employed in this production.

Increasing Consumption

Sugar refining is carried on in the United States and Canada at a present rate of about 8,000,000 tons yearly, and 12,000,000 pounds of copper tubing are installed in the refining machinery producing this output.

Approximately 75 per cent of the 8,000,000 pounds of copper consumed each year in the manufacture of bronze and copper insect screen cloth goes into the making of bronze insect cloth, which is 90 per cent copper.

Consumption of bronze and copper insect screen cloth now amounts to about 55,000,000 square feet per year in the United States.

TALKS TO MOTHERS' UNION

SHAWNIGAN LAKE, Feb. 27.—A highly successful meeting of the local branch of the Mothers' Union was held this afternoon at the Leinster School. This branch boasts a membership of twenty-four, and visitors brought the attendance to thirty, with the president, Mrs. Barry, in the chair.

Those present were fortunate in meeting Mrs. E. P. Laycock, the speaker of the afternoon. Her subject, "Christianity in the Home," was evidently appreciated by the meeting, and a vote of thanks, spontaneous and hearty, was tendered to her.

Practical sympathy was expressed for Dr. Wace's suggestion of a home in Victoria for crippled children, and voluntary offerings amounting to $2.50 were made for this purpose.

The ladies were grateful to the headmaster, Mr. Odo Barry, for the use of the schoolroom. The refreshments were provided by the members and were both plentiful and delectable.

Mrs. E. F. Musgrave, honorary secretary-treasurer, points out that this organization makes no financial claim on its members, but exists mainly for the betterment of home life.

Timely Tips and Suggestions on the Latest Diagrams and Hook-ups—Simplified.

By F. M. Russell

Trouble Shooting in Modified Reinartz

As the tuning of the modified Reinartz receiver and also the control of regeneration is confined entirely to the two variometer it can be seen that they must be right. The first thing to do is make sure that the centre tap of the antenna variometer that goes to the filament and ground is made at the right place as explained.

If this is O.K. a complete checking of the circuit should be made, both against the pictorial and schematic sketches. A good method of doing this is to make a diagram of the set yourself without looking at the original drawings, then compare this diagram with the original, and if any mistakes were made you will be sure to detect them. If the circuit proves O.K., examine the variometers thoroughly. Be sure that the bearings are firm and that the rotor and stator connections are complete. If the variometer is of moulded material it may be "Spill," that is, the rotor may not be connected to the stator. This may be determined by using the circuit tester as described in these pages a short time ago. The fixed condenser should be the next instrument to be examined. First be sure that it is of .0005 capacity and then test it to determine whether it is shorted or not. The circuit tester may be used for this also. When making connections to fixed condensers the wire should not be soldered directly to the terminals. A bolt and nut with a soldering lug should be slipped through the two holes and the connection be made to the lug. The heat of the iron will seriously affect the capacity of the condenser if applied directly to it. The soldering flux might flow into the dielectric and cause a leakage that in this set would result in noises and howls. If you are the least bit in doubt about the condenser it is best to put in another, as they are not expensive.

We are taking for granted that the batteries and tube are O.K. and that an antenna of one wire a hundred feet long, in a straight line, six to eight feet above all obstacles, is being used.—Copyright, 1925, by S.N.L. Technical Syndicate.

BRINGING 3,500 BALES OF SILK VALUED AT $4,500,000

Coming From United Kingdom Via Far East, Relieving Protesilaus—Philoctetes Due Outbound

Advices received here yesterday at Rithet's Consolidated announced that the Blue Funnel liner Talthybius, Captain W. Duggan commanding, would reach Victoria on March 6.

This vessel is bringing a big cargo of Oriental and U.K. commodities, and among the shipments from Japan is a consignment of 3,500 bales of silk, valued at $4,500,000, which will be forwarded East by a special express train of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway. Other features in the cargo are consignments of cigars and straw hats from the Philippine Islands.

The Talthybius came from the United Kingdom via the Suez Canal, relieving the former transpacific liner Protesilaus, which went home by the same route.

Outward bound, the Blue Funnel liner Philoctetes, now at Tacoma, will complete loading at Seattle shortly and sail from Victoria for the Far East Thursday night. The Philoctetes is commanded by Captain Evan Jones, and will take out a capacity cargo.

MARINE and TRANSPORTATION

Victoria Shipyards Will Experience New Activity

Expect Orders to Be Placed for New Sealing Schooners Soon—Other Sealers Falling in Line With Captain Sprott Balcom's Policy—Turpell's Building New Scow for Producers Rock and Gravel, and Have Several Other Orders on Hand

LOCAL yards will experience a boom in shipbuilding, if the announcement made yesterday by Turpell's Marine Railway can be taken as any criterion. Mr. Turpell announced that in addition to building a scow for the Producers Rock & Gravel Company, they have several other orders on hand for scows and expect definite announcement soon regarding the construction of sealing schooners by Victoria shipping men.

Captain Sprott Balcom is planning three new schooners, while other old-time sealers are thinking of building ships for the coming season, which opens in the Spring of 1926. Altogether it is estimated that Victoria will have a fleet of fifty sealing schooners operating in the North Pacific Ocean next Spring. The majority of them will be built here, as Captain Balcom has investigated the building of these schooners and finds it far cheaper to have the designs made in the East and have the vessels built here than have them built at Halifax and have them brought to this coast via the Panama Canal.

Turpell's yards anticipate several orders in the near future, but would give nothing definite. They said, however, that something of a concrete character would be announced shortly.

In the meantime all local yards are busy with general Spring overhaul and repair work. The Victoria Machinery Depot is still working on Captain Berquist's new freighter, the Famous, and expects to complete the job in some ten days' time, while they have the Whaling Corporation's whalers, Grey and Blue, ready to be hauled out on the ways for the annual Spring overhaul before proceeding to Naden Harbor, Rose Harbor and Kyuquot for the early Spring and Summer season. The entire fleet will be hauled during the early Spring and given a complete overhauling. The Victoria Machinery Depot has done the work in the past and it is expected that this firm will again handle the work as it already has the Grey and Blue.

Yarrows' Limited launched the Standcona from the ways yesterday after giving the hull a complete overhauling and painting. This vessel will lay at Yarrows' dock, where the engines will be overhauled before she once again loads liquor for the South. The Malaspina will be hauled out on the ways for general overhauling, after her long search in Milbank Sound for the schooner Haysport II, which sank with all hands, it is thought. Yarrows is also doing some repair work on the lighthouse tender Estevan, at the Government docks in the Inner Harbor.

PLAN TO IMPROVE INTERCOAST RUN

MR. B. C. KEELEY SAYS C.G.M.M. HAD GOOD SEASON

Does Not Belong to Any Conference, and Can Give Lower Rates—Fortnightly Service Is Probable

So successful has been the intercoastal service, announces Mr. B. C. Keeley, Pacific Coast manager of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, that it is planned to augment the fleet on this run. As far as cargo is concerned the vessels in this service have experienced a fairly good Winter.

Canadian shippers out of Eastern Canadian points to British Columbia are getting the same ocean rates as the New York exporters are given on Atlantic United States lines to Seattle and Vancouver. At present a monthly service is given on this line.

"As the Canadian Government Merchant Marine is in no intercoastal conference, we can make rates that permit Canadian producers and manufacturers to compete with any like commodity coming from the United States," said Mr. Keeley, "and we are doing it."

The intercoastal service maintained by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine assists in moving British Columbia lumber and canned goods to the eastern side. It is planned to augment this service as soon as navigation opens on the St. Lawrence. Instead of a monthly service a three-week or even fortnightly service may be inaugurated.

CHINOOK WILL RUN EXCURSION TOURS

MR. D. T. JONES BUYS VANCOUVER AUXILIARY YACHT

Will Run Excursions From Causeway to Esquimalt Harbor and Other Points of Interest

The two-masted schooner Chinook is lying in the Inner Harbor undergoing necessary repairs and alterations preparatory to entering into a new service that will be initiated by her owner, Mr. D. T. Jones, this Summer. The use, which it is intended to put the trim schooner to, is that of catering to the tourist trade by running short excursions several times a day out into the Straits.

The service into which the vessel is to be put will afford visitors from the interior parts of the country a thrill that has in many cases never before been theirs, namely, that of traveling by sail. It is believed that this form of entertainment will be immensely popular.

The Chinook, which was formerly the flagship of the Vancouver Yacht Club, is a very capable craft. She has accommodation for about sixty or seventy passengers and will be overhauled so that she may contribute especially to the comfort of those who may make use of this yachting experience.

It is the intention at present to arrange for a daily tour that will take the passengers out into the straits and around to Esquimalt harbor, following a course that will take them past interesting points in the Esquimalt harbor and then back to the Causeway steps again. The remainder of the day will be given over to short trips out into the straits. The vessel is provided with auxiliary power so that she will not be dependent upon the sails but may, when required, resort to the auxiliary power instead.

MANY INJURED ON BOARD AQUITANIA

ROUGH SEAS CAUSE VESSEL TO PITCH VIOLENTLY

Thirty-Two Passengers and Forty of Crew Injured During Storm—Ship's Doctor Kept Busy

CHERBOURG, Feb. 27.—Surgeon of the Cunard Line steamer Aquitania, which arrived here this evening from New York, had two busy days toward the end of the voyage across the Atlantic stitching or dressing cuts passengers received after being thrown about during violent storms the steamer encountered Wednesday and Thursday.

Officers who have been making trips on the Aquitania for the past ten years say they never have known her to roll as she did during these storms. The casualties aggregated 32 among the first class passengers and 40 among the crew. No one was seriously injured, however. Much furniture was smashed as the ship rolled about in the troughs of the sea.

The Aquitania made Cherbourg eight hours late.

The time used is Pacific Standard, for the 120th meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight.

The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, measured from the average level of lower low water.
